Secret fund use probed

Dean's credibility attacked at trial

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former White House counsel John W. Dean III testified at the Watergate cover-up trial today that in 1972 and 1973 he made personal use of $4,850 withdrawn from a $350,000 secret White House fund.

The admission was drawn out in cross-examination by defense lawyer John J. Wilson in an apparent effort to discredit Dean's character before the eyes of the jury.

In two days of cross-examination, Wilson has yet to attack the substance of Dean's narration of how he participated for nine months in covering up the Watergate scandals.

Defense lawyers acknowledge privately that six White House tapes heard by the jury so far make it difficult to dent the testimony given by Dean during five days on the witness stand under prosecution questioning.

Dean testified in detail before the Senate Watergate committee about his personal use of money from the White House fund. Its significance in the trial is how it affects the jury's opinion of his character and honesty.

Under cross-examination today, Dean testified that $15,200 in cash was delivered to his office by White House aide Gordon Strachan.

Dean told the jury that on Oct. 12, 1972, the eve of his honeymoon, he took out $4,850, part of which was spent on the trip and part of which was used for miscellaneous expenditures over the next six months.

Wilson repeatedly questioned Dean about the propriety of using the funds without advising anyone at the White House.

"For a period of six months you used money that didn't belong to you, didn't you?" Wilson asked.

Dean: "Yes, sir,"

Dean's blonde wife, Maureen, was present in the courtroom as he described the use of the funds.

The former White House counsel acknowledged that although he placed a $4,850 check written to cash in his office safe with the balance of the funds, there was not an adequate balance in his checking account to cover that amount.

Dean said, however, that he had other personal funds, including a stock brokerage account totaling $80,000 at one point, which he was prepared to use to account for the $4,850.

Dean said that in April 1973, he informed his lawyer about the $4,850 and the more than $10,000 remaining in the cash originally placed in his White House safe.

Pilot program launched

Pupils bring public closer to classroom

LITTLEST SPECTATOR — Who says school isn't fun? This little spectator, who sang right along with the kindergarten class, can't wait to grow big enough to go to school.

For those who may have been shopping in Buckeye Mart in the Washington Square Shopping Center Tuesday or Wednesday, the store is not starting a new day care center.

The group of children nestled back in the furniture department were just students of the Washington C. H. city schools kindergarten classes partaking in a new pilot project.

The project was designed as a preliminary to the observance of National Education Week, Oct. 28-Nov. 1, in order to not only bring pupils to the public, but also bring the public to the classroom.

DURING THE Tuesday morning session, as in the other three classes conducted during the two days, Belle-Aire Elementary kindergartners, under teacher Mrs. Ramona Miller, were given a short tour of the store by the manager and received a simplified explanation of the merchandising process.

The children then established regular class with their teacher in the furniture department. Most did not seem to mind all the eyes watching them while they tried to remember how many toes they had on their feet or what number came before eight.

According to Lewis M. Parrett, elementary coordinator in the Washington C. H. city schools, "The kindergarten groups were chosen to underscore the feelings of naturalness which older children might well lose in such a surrounding."

The kindergarteners from Mrs. Miller's Belle-Aire classes and Mrs. Marlene Martin's Middle School classes were bussed to and from the school. Members of Washington Senior High School's Future Teachers of America organization aided the teachers in getting coats on and lining the youths up for easy dispersal.

According to city school officials, the project may be expanded to other community agencies to increase community involvement and expose the modern educational process.

Thousands of lottery tickets stolen

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— William Horrigan, head of security for the Ohio lottery, says thousands of lottery tickets have been stolen over the past 10 weeks, and hundreds of persons have won $20 prizes by presenting invalid tickets.

Horrigan said Tuesday he will recommend to the commission the hiring of a security staff of 10 persons to investigate the thefts of a total of 12,848 tickets and the fraudulent ticket claims which careless agents have paid.

Meanwhile, the lottery commission announced that eight persons will participate in the Buckeye 300 drawing in Lima Thursday.

Horrigan said there have been 98 burglaries since the first lottery tickets were sold Aug. 12.

There have been about 100 cases a week of fraud in the claiming of lottery prizes, he said.

The fraudulent claims were estimated at $14,000.

The commission has been reimbursing agents for all the prize money they have paid out, Horrigan said, but eventually all the illegally disbursed prize money will have to be paid back to the commission.

A commission official said there have been 14 instances of ticket number alterations.

And James Skelly, public relations director, said there have been some instances in which ticket agents reported tickets stolen then tried to claim prizes with some of the tickets said to have been stolen.

Horrigan said these cases are still under investigation, and no arrests have been made.

Skelly warned that tickets should be purchased only from authorized sales agents.

"If you buy a ticket from a guy on the corner, chances are it's stolen, and if it's stolen, it's valueless," he said.

PREVIEW INTO TERROR — Pictured are some of the terrifying sights within the Mother's Circle haunted house at 102 E. Paint Street. Visitors can be scared this coming weekend from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. Friday and 10 a.m. until 12 p.m. and 2 p.m. through 4 p.m. Saturday. In real life, void of costume, these nice people are Joy Helfrich (witch in doorway and coordinator of the project), Beverly Alkire and her ghost daughter, Jennifer (on the left) and Rita Persinger and her witch daughter Jill (on the right).

Mothers Circle to open weekend haunted house

There is an old house located at 102 W. Paint Street, which will come alive with ghosts and goblins this Friday and Saturday, when the Washington C.H. Mothers Circle opens the door on their second annual "haunted house" project.

The house has been transformed into a number of spine-tingling sights for visitors. There is a man from Mars, a mummy, a trip through a spider-web and many more chilling sights and activities for those brave enough to take the 35-cent tour.

All ghosts will be mothers in costume and at the end of each tour a favor will be presented. The house may be seen from 2 p.m. through 4 p.m. Friday and 10 a.m. until 12 p.m. and 2 p.m. through 4 p.m. Saturday.

Proceeds will go into the Mothers Circle project fund.

KSU trial challenges set

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Preemptory challenges today removed three of the 12 tentatively seated jurors in the trial of eight former Ohio National Guardsmen indicted in the 1970 Kent State University shootings, but two were replaced quickly.

A challenge by the defense led to dismissal of Ralph L. Rumsey of Avon Lake, an air traffic controller at Oberlin. Government challenges brought dismissal of Jessie McQuire of Grafton, a butcher and parttime farmer, and Paul Bechtel of Bucyrus, a county worker there.

Tentatively seated were Thomas Hallauer of Elyria, a heating plant engineer at nearby Oberlin College, and Christine Stroup, a housewife in the Akron suburb of Mogadore.

One of the jurors called as a possible replacement from the original pool of 125 was dismissed by U.S. District Judge Frank J. Battisti when she answered negatively to his question as to whether she considered the defendants innocent until proven quilty.

The government has six of the challenges by which a prospective juror may be rejected without the challenging attorney giving a reason. The defense has 10, but Battisti has said that because of the large number of defendants, he may grant more if necessary in the interests of justice.

The government challenged one man because he is a member of the National Guard. Another was challenged because he said in answer to a question that if he were the prosecutor in the trial, he wouldn't present the case to a jury of 12 persons of the same frame of mind as his.

Two jurors were seated tentatively Monday, the first day of the trial. They were Ralph L. Rumsey of Avon Lake, a Federal Aviation Administration air traffic controller at Oberlin, and Constance Hillson, a 23-year-old housewife from suburban Garfield Heights.

The tentative panel was completed Tuesday with the selection of Alex Gross, a University Heights insurance agent; Paul Mack, a truck driver for a Cleveland department store; George Muntean, 52, a Strongsville toolmaker; Patrick Misanko, 21, an Akron rubber worker; William Pinter of Euclid, a medical photographer for a Cleveland hospital;

Jessie McGuire of Grafton, a butcher and parttime farmer; Paul Bechtel of Bucyrus, a county worker; Gladys Dillon, a Mansfield housewife; Reisha Shapiro, a University Heights secretary and bookkeeper, and Janice

Political charges traded

By The Associated Press

U.S. Rep. Thomas Luken, D-Ohio, demanded that top former Nixon officials leave the Ford Administration, and his Republican opponent Willis D. Gradison Jr. charged that Lukens's voting had supported inflationary measures.

Luken, following a debate with Gradison Tuesday at the University of Cincinnati, called for the firings of U.S. Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz, Postmaster General E. T. Klassen, Treasury Secretary William Simon and Federal Energy Administration chief John Sawhill.

Gradison hit Luken's proposals to cut military spending and added that while he was for cutting government spending, "where I am talking about millions, Mr. Luken is talking about billions.

"I want to know where the cuts are coming so I am sure that they will not hurt the security of the country."

"We have Nixon advisors still doing the same thing they were doing when Nixon was in office," said Luken, referring to the new Soviet wheat sales. "I think Mr. Butz should be fired.

"I am in favor of selling our surpluses. But not until we get prices down at home."

Luken, the third Democrat to be elected in the heavily Republican district this century, is seeking reelection to a full term. He is opposed by Gradison, the Republican he defeated in a special election last spring. Both are former Cincinnati mayors.

"The first thing we had to do was get rid of Mr. Nixon," Luken said in the debate. "I think we performed that with great honor.

"I think that this country has needed a restraining hand, and I think Congress has provided it."

In Hamilton, Democratic candidate for the U.S. Senate John Glenn, said he believes his background in the physical sciences and in technology in the U.S. space program will enable him to make a unique contribution if he is elected.

Ralph Perk, the Mayor of Cleveland.

Glenn said there is currently no senator who has any background in those fields.

In Clermont County, former Gov. James A. Rhodes told a Republican gathering that his Democratic opponent Gov. John J. Gilligan had completed only a small portion of the Appalachian highway.

Rhodes chided Gilligan for all but stopping a program begun in 1970 to attract industry to the county just east of Cincinnati.

Rhodes said he did not attend the dinner for President Gerald R. Ford in Cleveland Tuesday night because of his previous commitment to the GOP in Clermont County.

The county was one of the first to endorse Rhodes and raised $41,000 for his campaign, Rhodes said.

Mayor Perk, the Republican candidate for U.S. Senate, repeated his concern for the third day in a row that Democratic opponent Glenn tried to cover up a bad check allegation against a former Glenn campaign worker.

"I will not allow this potential scandal to be covered up or delayed until after election day," Perk wrote to Glenn in a letter questioning Glenn on the subject. "The voters of Ohio demand this mess be cleared up this week."

Authorities have issued warrants for Louis Quintero, a former Glenn campaign volunteer who was to open offices in the Spanish-speaking sections of Youngstown, Cleveland and Toledo. The warrants contend Quintero wrote bad checks totaling $65,000 allegedly for repayment of loans he obtained in Glenn's name.

Glenn's campaign manager, Stephen J. Kovacik Jr., responded to Perk's letter quoting portions of an editorial in the Cleveland Press on Tuesday:

"It is perhaps natural that ...Perk would hop on this issue, especially since the Perk campaign is sagging badly (according to all the polls.)

"We hope Perk doesn't try to ride this side issue all the way to election day. This election is going to be decided on the issues and on the voters' perception of the candidates' qualities ...And Perk should know better than to imply that it changes Glenn's record for integrity."

Both candidates are invited to appear at a journalism society meeting for a debate tonight in Columbus.

Rep. John Ashbrook, a Republican in Congress since 1960, told his Democratic opponent in the 17th District that it was the top Democratic leaders who maintained tradition in Washington.

Ashbrook was responding to David D. Noble's plea to voters to send new faces, such as his, to Congress because the current leaders are not doing the job. The two candidates debated Tuesday in Mansfield.

Kissinger opens talks in Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger arrives in Moscow today for another attempt to move the Soviet and U.S. governments toward an agreement to curtail the nuclear arms race. But Western observers doubt any dramatic breakthrough is likely.

Kissinger is believed to have sent the Kremlin new proposals to get the strategic arms limitation talks (SALT) moving again, including a schedule of suggested limits on the production of offensive missiles.

Soviet Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev has given no indication what his response might be. But the prospect, in the view of Western observers, is for more difficult bargaining in the second round of SALT talks, which opened in Geneva last month and then recessed to await the outcome of Kissinger's third visit to Moscow this year.

Also on the American secretary's agenda are the future of Arab-Israeli peace negotiations and the possibility of a get-acquainted meeting between Brezhnev and President Ford during Ford's visit to the Far East next month.

In the first round of SALT negotiations in 1972, the United States and the Soviet Union agreed on a permanent limitation of defensive missile systems, known as ABMs. But limits on offensive nuclear arms were only agreed on through 1977.

The two governments have agreed in principle that this pact should be renegotiated to extend its life through 1985. During his visit last March, Kissinger tried to achieve a "conceptual breakthrough" but failed, and at their meeting last summer Brezhnev and former President Richard M. Nixon could only agree that a new agreement should be "completed at the earliest possible date."

Meanwhile, the Russians are pushing ahead with nuclear missile development in an attempt to match the American technology which has produced the multiple-headed missiles known as MIRVs. A new round of Soviet missile tests has begun in the Pacific.

Associated Press correspondent Barry Schweid reported from Washington Tuesday that Kissinger will view the Soviet response to his proposals for arms negotiations as a test of Brezhnev's interest in promoting detente with the new American administration.

Kissinger leaves Moscow Sunday and goes to India and Pakistan. He will also visit Iran, possibly the Middle East and Turkey, and will address the world food conference opening in Rome Nov. 5.

Say existing law would aid housing

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio is not making much use of an existing law that could help the state's floundering housing construction industry, a special governor's committee has decided.

The committee included in a report to Gov. John J. Gilligan a recommendation that wider use should be made of the 1973 "impacted cities" bill.

The bill allows local governments to freeze property taxes for construction and improvements in blighted areas as an incentive for housing improvements.

"Almost no use has been made of this law which has been in effect almost a year now. We are always asking for laws, and then we don't use them," said Al Ratner of Cleveland, president of Forest City Enterprises, Inc. and a member of the 23-member committee named late last month by Gilligan.

At its second meeting in three weeks, the committee of construction, lending institution and labor union representatives recommended a series of actions—some that could be accomplished by executive action and others by the legislature.

The panel repeated its earlier call for the legislature to reconvene next month to complete action on a House-passed bill to create a housing finance agency. The agency would be empowered to issue bonds and guarantee loans for housing for low and moderate income families.

Gilligan was urged by the committee to name a more specialized panel to study federal and state housing regulations.

In for a particularly close look would be federal and state regulations covering interest rates that may be charged by financial institutions.

The committee suggested that the new committee also should study ways of increasing the flow of money into Ohio's mortgage market.

One possible source, it said, could be the state pension funds which already make multi-million dollar investments in numerous types of bonds and securities.

Another recommendation called for the existing Housing and Development Board to "gear up" for possible passage of the pending bill by studying staff needs, seeing what similar agencies in other states have done, and considering the adoption of rules and regulations.

The governor's committee decided against recommending action at this time to repeal or change state usury laws. The laws set a limit of 8 per cent on most housing loans, except those that exceed $100,000.

James I. Huston, committee member who headed an earlier governor's task force on housing, said it was felt the usury laws are "too complex and controversial" and could jeopardize passage of the pending measure.

President attacks Demos as threat

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford, stepping up his personal campaign for Republican candidates, is arguing that a big Democratic election victory could threaten the peace of the world.

After painting this dire picture Tuesday at a GOP rally in Oklahoma City, Ford stopped in Cleveland before returning to the White House and said:

"I call on Republicans in Ohio and the rest of the country to turn out to vote on Nov. 5 like you never have before. Confound the doomsayers. Fool the pessimistic pollsters."

White House reporters were alerted just before Ford spoke in Oklahoma City to expect an important foreign policy statement.

Ford announced no new foreign policy move but, in what Press Secretary Ron Nessen said was a reference to congressional votes to soon cut off U.S. aid to Turkey, the President said:

"I am concerned about the breach of this bipartisanship between a Republican president and a Democratic Congress. . .

"I am concerned that if we get a Congress that is vetoproof, a Congress that has the wrong philosophy—both domestically and internationally—the possibility for the next two years when our country faces the challenges in the Middle East, the challenges in the Mediterranean, the challenges in the Caribbean and in Latin America, the challenges in the Pacific—as we try to work to broaden detente, as we try to continue the normalization of relations with the Peoples Republic of China, as we, in the White House, and those in the Congress who understand bipartisanship and who believe that partisanship should end at the water's edge—if we get the wrong kind of Congress, peace could be in jeopardy."

The Ford statement prompted this response from Democratic National Chairman Robert S. Strauss:

"I was both saddened and troubled at hearing President Ford's shocking implication that the election of Democrats would have an adverse effect on world peace. This kind of rhetoric is reminiscent of the Nixon-Agnew campaign of 1970, when they appealed to the baser instincts of the American public and were soundly rejected."

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, called Ford's statement "a ridiculous charge." Muskie said the President apparently was making a campaign pitch, but it came out as "a horror story instead."

Business would pay more under Muskie economic plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie has proposed requiring business to pay a share of the cost of fighting inflation and recession as a major part of a Democratic alternative to President Ford's proposals.

Sharply critical of Ford's suggested economic remedies, the Maine Democrat said Tuesday night, "If the President wants Americans to eat less, drive less and demand less, he should be prepared to ask some of them to charge less."

Muskie spoke on NBC-TV in a speech billed as the Democratic response to Ford's address a week earlier in Kansas City.

The senator called for the Federal Reserve Board to pump more money into the economy in order to make credit more easily available for housing and small business. And he demanded firm presidential pressure on business and labor leaders to depress wage and price increases.

"I would like to see the President meet regularly with business and labor leaders in all major sectors of the economy to work out guidelines for action and agreements for restraint," Muskie said.

"A temporary cut in payroll (Social Security) taxes to help fatten pay envelopes should be a central part of a trade-off to help moderate wage demands.

"But let us be clear that if vigorous, voluntary wage-and price-control efforts fail, mandatory action must be taken."

The thrust of Muskie's speech was much the same as one last week in which Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield recommended a stronger governmental role against inflation and recession. Mansfield's remarks were in response to Ford's message spelling out his economic proposals, whose centerpiece was a 5 per cent surtax on middle-and upper-income Americans and on corporations.

Coverup trial

Dean said the total $15,200 is now held in a noninterest bearing account in a bank in suburban Rockville, Md.

Meanwhile, there was an indication Tuesday that former President Richard M. Nixon may testify in the trial. His attorney, Herbert J. Miller, asked for transcripts of White House tape recordings used in the trial so Nixon can prepare his testimony.

Nixon has been subpoenaed by defendants Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman, and Miller told U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica in a motion:

"It ... may be anticipated that he will be questioned in detail about events and conversations extending back at least 2½ years."

Miller said the tapes will be part of the court record by the time Nixon testifies and that the request "represents a reasonable, simple accommodation, making it possible for Mr. Nixon to begin at once the necessary and helpful refreshing of his memory."

In Tuesday's testimony, Wilson drew an admission from Dean that while the original Watergate burglars were being tried in January 1973, he shredded two notebooks, which came from the White House safe of E. Howard Hunt Jr.

Hunt, then among the original seven Watergate defendants, had compiled names and addresses of men who had helped in the 1971 break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist, according to Dean's testimony.

The former White House counsel said he shredded the notebooks because he had known of the Ellsberg break-in since May or April of 1972.

Dean said that when assistant U.S. attorneys began asking him about the Hunt notebooks, he discovered they had been transferred to his own office safe from Hunt's White House safe shortly after the June 17, 1972, burglary at Democratic National Committee headquarters.

"You did not turn them over to the prosecutors?" Wilson asked about the notebooks.

Dean: "No sir, I destroyed them."

Dean had said that in perusing the notebooks' pages, he saw no names or addresses he recognized and Wilson asked why, then, Dean placed them in his office shredder.

"I had been told there was information in them related to the individuals Mr. Hunt had used in the break-in at Dr. Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office," Dean replied.

Wilson later asked, "Were you consciously making a move to cover up the Ellsberg burglary?"

Dean answered that he knew Hunt had pleaded guilty to the later break-in and that former acting FBI director L. Patrick Gray III also had destroyed other contents of Hunt's safe given him by another defendant, Ehrlichman.

Dean said, "I just went along and did the same thing, knowing that I was destroying material relating to another White House problem."

Wilson pressed further, asking again whether Dean were not covering up the Ellsberg burglary by personally deciding to shred the notebooks.

"Yes sir, I was," Dean said, adding, "I was just getting rid of something I didn't know how to handle so I threw them in the shredder and hoped the problem would go away."

Defense lawyer Wilson also elicited Dean's description of persuading California attorney Herbert W. Kalmbach to raise funds for the original Watergate defendants.

Wilson asked Dean whether, in addition to paying family expenses and lawyers' fees, the purpose of the money as described to Kalmbach was to "keep the mouths of these people shut."

Dean answered, "Yes, sir."

On trial with Ehrlichman and Haldeman are former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, Robert C. Mardian and Kenneth W. Parkinson. All are charged with conspiracy to obstruct justice; all but Mardian with obstruction of Justice; and Mitchell, Haldeman and Ehrlichman with various counts of lying to investigators.

Meanwhile, the jury also heard the sixth White House tape to be played in concert with Dean's testimony.

The tape records an April 16, 1973, meeting during which Nixon is heard nervously attempting to arrange Dean's resignation as White House counsel.

Dean agrees to prepare a letter of resignation for use when needed, but repeatedly tells Nixon that Haldeman and Ehrlichman, then Nixon's closest aides, must quit, too.

Of Ehrlichman and Haldeman, Dean tells Nixon, "I think there is a mythical belief ... that they don't have a problem, Mr. President.

"And I'm, I'm really not sure you're convinced they do, but I'm telling you they do."

We wish to express our sincere thanks to relatives, friends, and neighbors for all the love and kindness, flowers, food and prayers given us during the sudden loss of our beloved husband, father and brother.

Sincere thanks to Rev. Clair Emerick, the Stookey sisters, and Gerstner-Kinzer Funeral Home.

Stocks fall on market

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market fell broadly in moderate trading today, led by auto stocks and glamor issues.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off 14.63 at 648.23 at noon, and issues falling in price outnumbered gainers by 3-1 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said profit-taking was spurred by concern over government reports issued Tuesday showing a drop in durable goods orders acompanied by a 1.2 per cent climb in consumer prices for September.

Avon Products led the Big Board actives, off 1⅜ at 22⅝ including a 99,900-share block at 22½.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index was off 0.58 at 69.15.

Motor stocks were especially weak among the most-actively traded issues, reacting to lower earnings, sales and production levels being reported. General Motors declined a point to 33½, Ford 1⅜ to 31½, and Chrysler ⅝ to 10⅛.

Papadopoulos arrested in Greece

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Former dictator George Papadopoulos and four of his closest associates have been arrested and exiled to a remote part of Greece on charges of plotting to regain power, the government announced today.

The announcement said those arrested with Papadopoulos were his former deputy premiers, Stylianos Patakos and Nicholas Makarezos; one of the hard-line ministers in his regime, Ioannis Ladas; and the former chief of the central intelligence agency, Michael Roufogalis.

Authorities sources said the five men were taken to the small island of Kea, about 60 miles southeast of Athens.

The government's announcement said Papadopoulos and the other four "undertook conspiratorial activity, creating anxiety and the conditions conducive to the disturbance of public peace and order," at the time of upcoming parliamentary elections.

The elections — Greece's first in more than 10 years — have been scheduled for Nov 17 by the reform regime of Premier Constantine Caramanlis.

The announcement also indicated that more charges will probably be filed against the five men. It said their confinement made it impossible for them to escape from Greece while the leaders of the military dictatorship are being investigated.

The defense challenged Misanko because he is a student at the University of Akron, where he is studying business administration. The challenge was overruled.

The eight defendants were indicted last March 29 by a federal grand jury that spent nearly three months investigating the shootings.

They are charged with willfully assaulting and intimidating student demonstrators by firing weapons in their direction and with violating their constitutional right not to be deprived of liberty without due process of law.

Four students were killed and nine wounded by National Guard troops May 4, 1970, during a confrontation between the guardsmen and demonstrators protesting U.S. military involvement in Cambodia.

Cloudy skies brought mild weather to the state today as a trough of low pressure was to cross Lake Erie and reach the Ohio River by Thursday.

Temperatures varied widely this morning with readings in the northwest in the lower 50s. Under clear skies in the southwest and south central areas, temperatures dropped into the middle 30s.

Scattered light showers and a few isolated thundershowers were reported in the northern counties of Ohio after midnight.

Fair skies are forecast Friday with a chance of showers Saturday and Sunday. Highs are to be in the 60s and 70s with lows in the 40s.

Fair Friday, a chance of showers Saturday and Sunday. Highs in the 60s and low 70s. Lows in the 40s.

We wish to express our most grateful thanks and deep appreciation to our many relatives, friends and neighbors for their thoughtfulness and prayers for our beloved husband and father, Harry W. Pommert, during his illness and death.

Opinion And Comment

THESE DAYS . . . . By John Chamberlain

Gloom and hope

COLUMBIA, S.C. — Elisabeth Noelle-Neumann, professor at the University of Mainz, has the reputation of being the best pollster in West Germany. She brought some gloomy figures to an international conference on European affairs held here at the University of South Carolina under joint German and American auspices. For 20 years, at various intervals, West Germans have been asked the question, 'Who will be the most powerful in 50 years, the U.S. or the U.S.S.R.?" In 1953, the answers ran three-to-one in favor of the Americans. In 1973, the odds had shifted: the Soviets had it by more than a two-to-one margin.

Curiously, this has not resulted in a defeatist mood in the West German majority. In 1971, when hopes for the Ostpolitik lessening of tensions with the East were in the ascendant, half of the West Germans, in answer to a polling question, said they were for subordinating NATO to neutralization. Only a third of the poll respondents were for sticking to NATO. But in 1974, the country has reversed itself, going back to the division of the early '60s, when 55 per cent favored NATO and 33 per cent were for neutralization — or "Finlandization," as it should be called.

A back-to-the-wall psychology is better than a defeatist psychology, but General Johannes Steinhoff of Bonn, who has been a German representative at NATO, made a most depressing assessment of the future of the NATO alliance. "The defense of the Northern flank;" he said, "is very problematic." Norway has a small population !(3.9 million) spread over 2,000 kilometers; Denmark, more densely populated, spends little on the military and much on welfare. In case of war, the northern region would be entirely dependent on reinforcements in the form of a NATO mobile force. There would be no time for political arguments, especially in view of what General Steinhoff characterized as "the enormous Soviet Northern Fleet. . . the gigantic military complex around Murmansk, only a few kilometers away from the Norwegian border in Finnmarken."

Turning to the south, General Steinhoff painted a picture of "almost insurmountable difficulties" posed by the lack of political stability all across the board from Portugal to Greece and Cyprus. The center region of NATO does better, with West Germany contributing "a remarkable part" that has aroused the "concern of the less potent European partners about the revival of a predominant German military power." But even in the strong center a multitude of different national logistic and weapons systems, "and finally even of doctrines," leads to a wastage of "50 per cent of efficiency. . . in the multinational cooperation." NATO forces employ 17 different kinds of anti-tank missiles, for example. There must be a standardization of equipment, and a "European Rand Corporation or a European Brookings Institute," a "think-tank charged with elaborating a new grand design."

Listening to Johannes Steinhoff, one has visions of the Soviets marching to the English Channel the way Rommel cut through to the French coast in 1940. But then a single statistic, provided off the cuff in a question-and-answer session, lights up the sky. One of the new U.S. "smart bombs" can do the work in an hour that bombs from 30 or 40 planes delivered over weeks and months couldn't do seven years ago. This means that, for a relatively small outlay, there might not be a bridge or a tunnel, or even a tank column left intact in the Carpathian mountains or on the Polish or Hungarian plains if the Soviets did try to move. The new weapons, some of which were proved out in the last hours of our participation in the Vietnam war, introduce such tremendous uncertainties that it is a good bet the European center is safe at least for the moment.

The real danger is that the Communists will be taking a Portugal or a Greece from within. The biggest victory the Soviets have won in recent months is the destruction, by a frivolous cabal of U.S. Congressmen and journalists, of any possibility that the CIA can ever again do an effective job of countering Soviet operatives in a likely spot marked out by the Left for an inside job takeover.

Your Horoscope

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 24

ARIES
(March 21 to April 20)

Mixed influences. In all endeavors, be selective and stress quality rather than quantity of effort. News from afar may surprise — pleasantly.

TAURUS
(April 21 to May 21)

Things should start picking up for you now. However, a whole new approach to an undertaking already under way could be your best road to achievement. Postpone new ventures.

GEMINI
(May 22 to June 21)

Do not let yourself be "thrown" by certain distractions. The well-developed Geminian has unusual ability to concentrate on his objectives, so put it to use NOW.

CANCER
(June 22 to July 23)

Do not try to change pre-planned activites or reverse tactics without giving others adequate notice. Careful explanation of your decisions can prevent misunderstandings.

LEO
(July 24 to Aug. 23)

Do not let overoptimism lead you into making dubious investments. In fact, it would be a mistake to make any drastic changes in your financial set-up at the moment.

VIRGO
(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

If extra responsibilities are thrust upon you, accept gladly those which you can reasonably handle but draw the line if anyone tries to take advantage of your good nature.

LIBRA
(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

Caution urged in business negotiations. Certain factors you may have taken for granted may prove otherwise. Be especially careful where details are concerned.

SCORPIO
(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

A sharp and, in some areas, unexpected surge of activity. Keep in step with events — but without anxiety.

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

Certain situations may be more complex than you realize. Avoid any involvement that could damage your prestige.

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

Morning hours favor the exchange of ideas, programming for future activities, business conferences generally. Accent is on the social after 3 p.m.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

Keep both feet on the ground now. There's a tendency to confuse the imaginatively creative with the offbeat and impractical.

PISCES
(Feb. 20 to March 20)

Be prepared for surprises — especially in social circles. Certain odd persons or bizarre doings may raise your eyebrows. But you WILL be amused.

YOU BORN TODAY have all the vigor and enthusiasm for life that's typical of the true native of Scorpio, but also contain within your makeup many of the traits of the now descending Libra — notably your love of beauty and the arts, as well as outstanding gifts of healing and humanitarianism. You have fine executive ability, imagination and originality. Tremendously ambitious, you may, at times, overtax yourself in your desire to get ahead and, even though you have been endowed with a robust constitution, could run health and nerves to the ground. DON'T! Fields in which you could find your greatest success and happiness: music, sculpture, medicine, the theater, journalism or, in the business world, real estate, banking or merchandising.

Letter To The Editor

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

Having briefly discussed planning areas, service areas, recommendations of the governor's Local Government Services Commission which would eliminate local officials as elective officials, and the general concept of regional government, let us devote the next two letters to our reappraisal and how our tax base stands to be affected.

We're all well aware that the sexennial reappraisal of agricultural land, industrial, commercial and residential real property is now under way — to be completed in 1976. This will result in an increase in our taxes, just how much we'll not know until January 1977 when we get our tax notices based on the 1976 duplicate.

This time we'll be assessed on the basis of 35 per cent of "current market value" instead of being based on "appraised value" as in the past. What effect do you suppose land selling anywhere from $1,000 to $1,500 per acre will have on the current market value of your farm?

Remember this also: counties having reappraisals under the new 35 per cent requirement must update valuations each year so that the 35 per cent level is maintained. Heretofore we have had reappraisals only every six years.

So, if real property values continue to rise, your duplicate will also rise because, by law, the 35 per cent level must be maintained.

There are now provisions in the law which make it mandatory for the local taxing officials to scale down any voted millage in the same ratio as the increase in evaluation. This provision does not apply to mandated or unvoted millage. So, your taxes will rise. The only question is now much?

The answer is we don't know yet, but here is the experience of a few counties who completed their sexennial reappraisal in 1972 and an annual update of valuations in 1973. The first figure is the increase as the result of the sexennial reappraisal of agricultural land in 1972 and the second is the increase as the result of the updating of valuations in 1973, both figures are percentage increase:

Athens 107.6, 10.4; Summit 81.8, 10.8; Ashland 68.8, 14.3; Knox 53.4 (not available); Clermont 45.2, 31.7; Noble 39.5, 14.1; Ashtabula 39.3, 10.9; Madison 34.0, 13.0. These eight counties have experienced the same thing Fayette County is now experiencing.

It seems that it would be prudent to exercise vigilance and serious thought in the matter of taxes.

Next time I will give you some discussion regarding efforts to strip us, the bearers of the tax burden, of the protective clauses in the law.

All that I have quoted has been fact.

J. Herbert Perrill

P.S. Did you know your government spent $20,000 studying the biological rhythms of catfish in India? Whatever this means and who cares anyway?

Stay with your boat or canoe in the event it capsizes, says the division of watercraft of the Ohio Department of Natural Resources. Rescue planes and boats can more easily locate the accident by looking for a boat rather than for individuals, and the boater who trys to swim to shore greatly increases the risk of drowning.

Speed limit enforcement difficult, officials report

By The Associated Press

Many of the nation's governors and mayors say there's little they can do about President Ford's request to enforce the nationwide 55 m.p.h. speed limit except praise it as a good idea.

The governors and mayors, many of whom got telegrams a week ago from Ford asking for stricter speed limit enforcement, say their states are already doing everything possible given the manpower available.

Many officials, including state and local police, say the basic problems are that the public is not convinced that energy conservation will help cut inflation and there are too many speeders for the police to handle, a nationwide Associated Press survey shows.

The survey also showed that:

—With minor exceptions, the nation's governors and mayors plan no special actions on speed limit enforcement because of Ford's telegram.

—Many states have upped manpower to monitor speeding violations since last winter and speeding tickets are up considerably in many states. Nearly all officials say there is no way to further increase patrols, despite Ford's request.

—Some states treat drivers speeding over the national limit but under the old state limit less severely than those exceeding the old limits.

—Many states do not stop drivers traveling above 55 m.p.h. until they approach a set speed — say, 62 m.p.h.

—In scattered areas, judges are dismissing charges against people caught speeding over 55 m.p.h but under old limits; police in some areas give warnings instead of tickets to such speeders.

"South Dakota enforces its speed laws, and will continue to do so," said Gov. Richard Kniep, who plans no changes in state procedures on speeding. "The basic problem with enforcement is that once a sizeable percentage of the population begins to ignore the speed limit, or any law, it is hard to control.

"As a practical matter, if everyone on the highway is traveling 60 miles per hour, a patrolmen can hardly stop them all and can hardly be expected to selectively choose which ones to pick."

"My total reaction to Mr. Ford's proposal is that he's trying to organize a high school cheerleading team," said St. Paul, Minn., Mayor Lawrence Cohen. He called Ford's suggestions "buck-passing."

Rhode Island Gov. Philip W. Noel was one of the few officials who said he planned to increase the number of troopers on the road. He also said he would ask the state police superintendent to meet with local police to advise them of Ford's telegram.

The state of Ohio recently opened a foreign trade development office in Dusseldorf, West Germany, to help Ohio companies increase their share of the multi-billion dollar exporting market, according to the Ohio Department of Economic and Community Development.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

In Ted's case, "T" stands for trouble

DEAR ABBY: I am getting married next month and was very happy about it until last night, when Ted and I had a long talk.

He told me not to expect him to stay faithful to me all our married life because all married men go out on their wives sooner or later and he doesn't think he is going to be any different.

Abby, I love Ted very much, and I don't think I could stand it if I knew he cheated on me.

What should I do?

IN LOVE

DEAR IN: Tell Ted that in this age of the liberated woman, all married women go out on their husbands sooner or later; and since you feel a part of the new sisterhood, the arrangement he proposes is at least negotiable. (In any event, the "T" in Ted stands for trouble.)

DEAR ABBY: I was told a few years ago, if a man didn't want to be drafted in the U.S. Army, he could PAY someone to substitute for him. I know it sounds like a dumb question, but I can't find the answer anywhere. Can you help me?

INQUISITIVE

DEAR INK: It is not a "dumb" question. And it WAS true, but no longer is.

By the terms of the Conscription Act of 1863, a man eligible for the draft could avoid service by providing a substitute, or paying a commutation of $300.

One-time President Grover Cleveland paid a substitute $150 to serve for him in the Civil War. (Cleveland had two brothers in the U.S. Army and a mother and two sisters to support at the time.)

DEAR ABBY: My father-in-law died six months ago and since his death, my mother-in-law has practically lived with us.

She comes over every night for supper and sits all evening. It's not that she stays so long, but I work, and frankly, I would like to be able to come home and just relax.

She has always been very critical of anyone who doesn't keep a spotless house, and although I'm a fairly good housekeeper, I feel she will criticize me. It's gotten to the point where I hate to go home after work because I know she will be there. She's a nice person, and I get along with her, but I need time to be alone.

She spends every weekend here, and I can't accomplish anything because she is always looking over my shoulder.

She's well enough to go everywhere we go. She went on our vacation with us, and if she wants to go next year, I'd just as soon stay home.

I hate to be a stinker, and I wouldn't want to shut her out completely, but this is too much.

My husband is unfortunately her only "child" and she doesn't get along with the other relatives. Help!

SUFFOCATING IN VA

DEAR SUFF: Your problem is not your mother-in-law, it's the lack of communication with your husband. Your objections seem reasonable enough to me.

Have a heart-to-heart talk with hubby, and let him know how you feel.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A. Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, Oct. 23, the 296th day of 1974. There are 69 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1917, American troops saw their first action on the Western Front in World War I, in fighting near Luneville, France.

On this date —

In 1641, the Great Irish Massacre took place after the discovery of a conspiracy against the English.

In 1776, in the Revolutionary War, General George Washington's troops withdrew from the island of Manhattan.

In 1925, 25,000 women marched in New York, demanding the right to vote.

In 1929, stock market prices began to plunge in heavy trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

In 1942, in World War II, the British launched a big offensive against Axis forces at El Alamein in Egypt.

In 1944, the Allies recognized a French provisional government headed by Charles de Gaulle.

Ten years ago: The new premier of the Soviet Union, Alexei Kosygin, received U.S. Ambassador Foy Kohler and told him peaceful co-existence remained Moscow's policy toward the West.

Five years ago: U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Loge refused to speak at the Vietnam peace negotiations in Paris, charging the Communists with using abusive language against the United States.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Back in 1947, TV cameras were allowed in the House chamber to cover the 80th Congress' opening session. Neither House has allowed live, from-the-chamber coverage of its regular sessions since then. But this may be changing soon.

The Joint Committee on Congressional Operations this month issued a report recommending that live radio-TV coverage of regular sessions of both House and Senate be allowed on a one-year trial basis in 1975.

It notes that while presidents have become increasingly sophisticated in the use of radio and TV, Congress "has followed an approach to communications that is essentially passive and in some instances restrictive."

And it contends that "Congress must now actively seek ways to reach and inform more people through the mass media." It suggests that Congress should try to correct the imbalance of influence created by the ready access of presidents to national radio and television.

To get the ball rolling, the report recommends that the broadcast test start as soon as possible after the opening of the 94th Congress next year.

It recommends that TV coverage be kept closed-circuit for 60 days and radio coverage for 30 days to iron out whatever technical problems arise.

After that, it says, video and audio feeds of the floor sessions of both Houses can be made available free to commercial and public broadcasters, for use live or on videotape in news or public affairs programs.

It suggests that the committees supervising the test subsequently recommend to the Congress whether the system should be made permanent prior to the start of the nation's bicentennial.

It doesn't say who might run the radio operation, although a committee spokesman says it probably would be the National Public Radio system.

The report, which has yet to be acted on by congressional leaders, suggests they consider "inviting" the Public Broadcasting Service to submit proposals for setting up and operating the TV system, at least during the test.

No invitation has come yet, according to Hartford Gunn Jr., head of PBS. He said the question of what his organization will do when and if it gets the invitation will be discussed by PBS' executive committee when it meets Thursday and Friday in Muncie, Ind.

He said PBS, while honored by being considered for the invitation, hasn't taken any position yet on whether it'd like to run Congress' TV eye.

There's a big question, he said, of who'd foot the bill and "I'm sure it can't be funded out of existing public television resources, because we've already got them stretched pretty thin.

"So my guess is that the money would either have to come from Congress itself or from outside foundations and contributions."

Laurie Lisk and Rob Harris

Seniors of the Week

Laurie Lisk, one of the most active seniors at WSHS, is the first featured senior this week. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lisk, 815 Dayton Ave.

Laurie is editor-in-chief of the Sunburst, active in Y-Teens, a member of the National Honor Society, AFS, band, Junior Leadership, and serves as secretary of the senior class. She was also chosen as an alternate to Buckeye Girls State and was featured in "Who's Who in American High School Students."

Her future plans include attending either Brigham Young University of the University of Cincinnati to study interior designing. "It's most essential to be an individual in high school. Make something of yourself, be active, and have a great time. We will not be here forever so take advantage of what we have now, and appreciate our friends and good times. As for me, Lions will be No. 1 forever," Laurie said.

When asked to comment on how he feels about WSHS, he replied, "I feel that my past years of enrollment in Washington city schools, and especially WSHS, have been extremely helpful in giving me a great push in competing in the outside world. Through this attendance, I have learned to communicate and get along with people much easier than I would have been able to otherwise. It has been a very essential part of my life and a great experience."

Robert (Rob) M. Harris, son of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Harris, 652 Warren Ave., is our second featured senior of the week.

Rob's many interests include golfing, swimming, hiking, fishing, and water skiing. He is an active member of the Lettermans club and Hi-Y.

After graduation, Rob plans to attend either Miami University or Ohio State.

Congressional candidates must still file the federal reports with the secretary of state.

WSHS homecoming assembly impressive

As a newcomer to WSHS, the homecoming assembly last Friday was one of the most impressive I've ever seen.

The ROTC provided the dignified arch of swords, under the direction of Seaman Jeff Wallace, USN, visiting WSHS from the Naval Academy prep school in Newport, R.I. For the seniors it was a solemn and sad happening as Queen Johnna Upthegrove and Cindy Vaughn, representing all the senior girls, had difficulty holding back tears. I'm sure deep inside even some of the senior boys had the same feeling because for them it was the beginning of the end as the days pass and graduation approaches all too quickly.

This was brought even closer into reality as for the sake of memory the choir sang "Song Sung Blue" and the band played "Yesterday."

One humorous highlight of the entire assembly was the presentation of the "Mr. Touchdown" trophy to Kevin Blair, who received more votes than the other seniors who were competing. Funny, that when his name was called he immediately produced a lengthy acceptance speech which ranged from comments of thanks to his "campaign manager," friends who voted for him, coaches, teachers and others too numerous to mention. If for no other purpose comic relief was provided when it was needed.

Seniors of the Week

By SANDY McCOY

Kathleen Frazier is our first featured senior of this week. She resides in New Holland with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Frazier, and her brothers and sisters.

Although Kathy carries a heavy schedule at school, she finds time for numerous activites. She is a member of AFS, president of an FHA mini chapter, and secretary of National Honor Society. In past years she has participated in Future Nurses and Y-Teens. Also, Kathy is a member of St. Colman's Catholic Church. In school, her favorite subjects are Senior Homemaking and contemporary literature.

IN HER spare time, Kathy enjoys swimming, tennis, bicycling, and ice skating. Her advice to underclassmen is to "take advantage of the opportunities offered you and enjoy your high school years to the fullest." She has not yet decided on a college, but would like to further her education.

The main goal of our next featured senior, Phil Skinner, is to major in systems analysis. His favorite subject is government and his favorite class is business law.

Phil is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Skinner, of Bloomingburg. National Honor Society, Future Teachers, Varsity M, and Linguistic Arts are the clubs he has participated in, and he was also chosen to appear in "Who's Who in American High Schools." Phil has been very active in sports, participating in football for two years and basketball and baseball for three years.

Golf and swimming are Phil's hobbies. When asked to comment on his years at Trace, he stated that "students should make the best of it, and have all the fun they can while they are at Trace."

Swimming, trying to play tennis, and bike riding are Diane Conley's favorite hobbies. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Elliot, of Ohio 41-N, and W.R. Conley, of Jackson.

Diane is a member of many clubs and participates in many activities. Future Teachers (president), Y-Teens, the Mitra staff, the Tracer page (co-editor), National Honor Society (treasurer), Marching band for four years, FHA mini chapter (secretary), AFS, and working in the office keep Diane busy. She was a delegate to Buckeye Girls State and has been chosen to appear in this year's edition of Who's Who in American High School Students.

World history with Mr. Dale Creamer was Diane's choice of a favorite subject. Diane hopes to attend either Ohio Dominican College or Miami University and major in special education.

When asked for comments, Diane replied, "As my years at Miami Trace draw to a close, I realize the value of all that I have learned and the value of the friends I have made. I hope to use this knowledge to the fullest in my future."

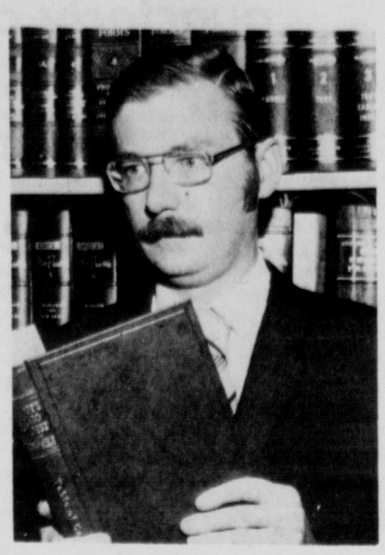
Simpson relocates law practice here

Attorney Robert L. Simpson has relocated his office at 203 N. Fayette St., sharing office space with Harkins and Reckless, attorneys.

A graduate of the University of Cincinnati Law School in 1964, Simpson had practiced law in East Liverpool before coming to Washington C.H. in 1972. He served as assistant county prosecutor until January of 1974.

Although he shares office facilities with Columbus-based attorneys Pat Harkins and Walter Reckless, Simpson said there is no partnership in the arrangement. Formerly associated with Hess and Simpson attorneys, he said he "desired to establish an individual practice."



ROBERT SIMPSON

FOLLOWING graduation from the University of Cincinnati, Simpson served in the U.S. Navy for three years with duty assignments in the Judge Advocate General's office in the Pentagon. He currently holds the rank of lieutenant commander in the Naval Reserve, and is the legal officer of the Naval Air Station in Columbus.

After leaving active duty in the U.S. Navy, he began his private practice in East Liverpool, where he later served as city prosecutor. Simpson continued his academic endeavors, working toward a master of law degree in international law from the University of Miami, Coral Gables, Fla.

The 35-year-old Simpson and his wife, Janette, live at 825 Lincoln Drive. They have four children, Mary Ann, 6, Heather, 5, Bobby Jr., 18 months, and Ian, six months. Also residing with the family at present is foreign exchange student Chavo Lozano, who is a senior at Washington Senior High School.

Man jailed on two charges after scuffle with police

A Washington C.H. man was charged with public intoxication and resisting arrest Tuesday night after officers had been summoned to investigate a complaint of an intoxicated man tearing up his house.

Police said Harry L. Hollar, 40, of 729 Forest St., is lodged in city jail in lieu of $1,000 bond on the two charges.

Police Specialists Larry Hott and Bill Robinson and Patrolman Larry Mongold said they found Hollar sitting outside his home holding an open pocket knife when they responded to the complaint at 1:52 p.m. Tuesday.

The police officers attempted to convince him to come along peacefully, but Hollar kept backing away from them, according to the report.

When they attempted to grab him, Hollar started to fight and was sprayed with chemical mace. He continued to fight the officers and they were forced to use their nightsticks to subdue him.

Hollar was taken to Fayette Memorial Hospital where he was treated and released for a head laceration sustained in the scuffle with police officers.

School issues discussed at Union Twp. PTO meet

Ora Burdge, a member of the Fayette County Committee on Quality Education, was the guest speaker at the regular Union Township PTO meeting Tuesday night in the Miami Trace High School auditorium.

Burdge's discussion centered on the upcoming tax and operating levy for the schools on the November ballot.

The principals of the three schools were introduced by PTO president William Martin—Glen Hutchison, of Wilson, Frank Creamer, of Eber, and Mrs. Nancy Harper, of Chaffin.

Mrs. Harper gave a presentation of the open-court reading program, newly-developed in the first, second and third grades, immediately following the meeting.

Entertainment was provided by the seventh and eighth grade Eber School group, "The Singing Hawks," who sang and danced to a variety of popular songs. They were directed by their leader, Mrs. Joanne Rhoads.

In a short business meeting, Mrs. Martin introduced the new officers: first vice president, Mrs. Helen Stilker; second vice president, Mrs. Carolyn Louise DeWeese; secretary, Mrs. Nancy Lovett; treasurer, Mrs. Sharon Dodds; and news reporter, Ms. Janet Sollars.

It was announced that the turkey raffle tickets would be distributed by students in the three schools during November with the drawing at the next meeting, Dec. 10. During the December meeting, to be held at 7:30 p.m. in the Miami Trace High School auditorium, the children from grades two, five and six will present a musical program.

Alleged kidnaper files bid

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — A Winter Park, Fla., man accused of kidnaping says his civil rights are being violated and has asked a court to rescind an order forcing him to turn over evidence.

A new attorney for Clifford J. Kroger, 38, a civil engineer, filed the motion in Hamilton County Common Pleas Court asking Judge William S. Morrissey to rescind an order that would make Kroger provide blood, hair and handwriting samples to the prosecution.

Kroger waived extradition in Florida and was returned here to face charges in the Sept. 23 kidnaping of 4-year-old Allison Mechem, daughter of broadcast executive Charles Mechem.

The little girl was found unharmed in a motel, and the $128,000 ransom was recovered untouched by the kidnapers, police said.

Kroger's attorney, Bernard Gilday, Tuesday contended that Morrissey's order violated Kroger's rights. The order is tantamount to compelling the defendant to be a witness against himself, Gilday said.

Morrissey said Oct. 10 when he issued the order that the U.S. Supreme Court has ruled that blood can be taken from a suspect, forcibly if necessary.

Kroger remains in jail in lieu of $100,000 bond.

Motorist killed

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — David R. Brunelle, 22, of suburban Symmes Township was killed Tuesday night when his car struck a tree off E. Kemper Road near U.S. 27, Hamilton County police said.

Twister office closed

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP) — The Butler County Board of Health has closed its Pisgah temporary office which was set up April 3 to deal with problems left by tornadoes.

Fire checked

An uncovered wire in a switch box caused some sparking and smoke at the New Gerstner-Kinzer Funeral Home, 509 Washington Ave., at 4:29 Tuesday.

Washington C.H. firemen responded to the call, but found the small fire out on arrival. Damage was limited to the wires in the box.

There are 1,600 rockhounds clubs nationwide, and their membership represents only about 7 per cent of the people who take part in the hobby.

Chrysler earnings decline

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp. has reported a thirdquarter profit of $11.2 million in U.S. and Canadian operations and increased sales revenue worldwide. But the firm wound up losing $8 million for the quarter because of overseas losses.

The North American profits were offset by losses totaling $19.2 million overseas, Chrysler said.

The figures announced Tuesday show Chrysler still in the black for the year so far. The nine-month earnings are $21.4 million, an 88 per cent decline from $181 million a year ago, and a per-share drop from $3.42 to 38 cents.

It was only the second quarter in 3½ years that the nation's third largest auto maker reported a loss. General Motors and Ford Motor Co. plan to report their third-quarter results next week.

The loss came despite record revenues for the period. Sales totaled $2.8 billion, up from $2.3 billion for the third quarter of 1973.

Trading of the firm's stock was temporarily halted on the New York Stock Exchange Tuesday. It closed at 10¾, a low for the year.

Chrysler Chairman Lynn Townsend said the firm has been unable to recover $249 in material and labor costs added for each car since January 1972 despite price increases averaging about $1,000 since 1974 models came out a little more than a year ago.

County couple file suit over airport's operation

CHILLICOTHE — A dispute over the operation of the Ross County Airport involving the former operators of the Fayette County Airport has resulted in a law suit filed in Ross County Common Pleas Court.

Bill and Judy Dennis, of Washington C.H., have filed a $79,000 damage suit against Thomas LeCrone, the present operator of the Ross County Airport.

The Fayette county couple at one time were the franchised operators of both the Fayette County and Ross County airports. Deciding to venture into other business enterprises, the couple negotiated with other parties who indicated they wished to purchase the flying schools and privately-owned equipment at each airport.

In Washington C.H., John and Sandy Woodmansee obtained the school and took over the lease as managers of the airport facility.

In Ross County a similar agreement was allegedly confirmed by the prospective buyer, Thomas LeCrone. The Dennis' claim that they and LeCrone jointly announced their proposed arrangement with the Ross County Board of Commissioners, who sanctioned the charge.

With this understanding, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis did not present the commissioners with a bid to lease the airport and operate it for the county. After the franchise was awarded to LeCrone, the only bidder, he refused the terms to which he had allegedly agreed.

Mr. and Mrs. Dennis have asked in the suit that they be awarded $79,000 damages as compensation for the loss of business since they are unable to operate the flying school as long as LeCrone is the airport manager.

Alternatively, they have asked the court to nullify the awarding of the franchise so that they may enter a competitive bid and be considered as candidates to be retained as operators of the airport facility.

They had been providing Ross County with a Federal Aviation Administration and Veterans Administration approved flying school.

City police investigate 696 September incidents

City police during September made 51 criminal arrests, 69 traffic arrests and investigated 696 incidents, according to the monthly report prepared by Washington C.H. Police Chief Rodman Scott.

Of the 696 incidents the most common were accidents, 79; aided persons and disturbances, 55 each; suspicious persons and cars, 50; miscellaneous calls and larcenies, 48 each.

During the month the department arrested 13 persons for disorderly conduct, 11 for petty theft, six for assault, five for intoxication and two apiece in the categories of check fraud, breaking and entering and illegal possession of drugs.

The 51 criminal arrests for September 1974, is a decrease from the 67 arrests for the same period in 1973.

Speeding topped the list of traffic offenses during the month with 16 arrested offenders. Driving under the influence and failure to obey traffic devices resulted in six arrested offenders each, failure to yield right of way and driving while under the influence of alcohol or other drugs of abuse, five each; reckless operation, seven; and two persons were arrested in each of the following categories, driving under license suspension, excessive noise, improper passing, improper registration, insufficient brakes or lights, driving left of center, parking violation and unsafe bumper height.

The 69 arrests for traffic violations during September brings the total to 660 for 1974. In 1973, 70 motorists were arrested during September and the year's total stood at 632.

Property damage resulting in auto mishaps during the month was estimated by Chief Scott at $19,340, bringing the total so far in the year to $155,489. Damage for September 1974 was $21,496.60.

Value of property reported stolen during the month totaled $3,719.70. Value of property recovered was $1,155.53.

Vandalism was responsible for a reported $931.50 damage in September.

Ohio GOP voters urged to turn out

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— President Ford says he doesn't believe it, but "the word is out...(that) Ohio Republicans are not going to vote this year.

"They are turned off by politics," Ford told a Republican fund raising dinner Tuesday night. "They are going to sit this one out."

Urging party members to get out and vote to "send a message" to Congress in support of his anti-inflation program, Ford said for party members to fail to vote would be "akin to setting fire to your house to keep warm."

He plugged Republican Mayor Ralph J. Perk, who is running for the U.S. Senate, calling him a "great team player who deserves to be elected the next U.S. senator from Ohio."

Perk was among party dignitaries on hand to welcome the President. Missing from the group was former Gov. James A. Rhodes, the party's nominee for governor.

Rhodes, who has opposed Ford's 5 per cent surtax proposal, was attending a fundraising affair at Batavia.

Ford disappointed Ohio football fans by saying that because of a conflict with his upcoming trip to the Far East, he won't be able to attend the Michigan-Ohio State game at Columbus Nov. 23.

In another reference to football, he urged Americans to "make politics a spectator sport.

"If we can get 85,000 people out on Saturday to watch Ohio State win, why can't we get five million Buckeyes to come out on Nov. 5 to help America win?" he asked.

About 300 persons paid $500 a plate to attend the dinner at the Sheraton-Cleveland Hotel.

Ford left immediately afterward to return to Washington.

GORDY COLEMAN

Coleman addresses local Rotarians

By LARRY WATTS
Record-Herald Sports Editor

"Baseball is a great game of second-guessing," remarked Gordy Coleman, a former first baseman with the Cincinnati Reds. Coleman, who is presently head of the Reds' speakers' bureau, was the guest speaker at the Rotary luncheon, Tuesday afternoon.

After coming up through the Cleveland baseball system, Coleman joined the Reds in 1959 and played through the 1967 season. He was a member of the 1961 National League pennant winners.

"The game of baseball is changing and we found out when we moved to Riverfront Stadium that a good team requires pitching, speed and defense," Coleman said. "While in Crosley Field, we were looking for the home run hitter because of the short fences. However, the move to Riverfront changed our philosophy."

"The new artificial surfaces have helped the fielders," remarked Coleman, who was noted more for the long ball than for his field ability. "Now the ball takes a truer bounce. It (the field) makes bad fielders average and good fielders better."

Coleman also noted that pitching staffs have taken a considerable change in the major leagues. Each member of the pitching staff is assigned to do special things and starting pitchers are not expected to more than five or six innings.

"Guys who pitch more are the ones who have come up with those freak pitches, such as the screwball, forkball and knuckleball," related the former first baseman. "The guys with fast balls, such as Clay Carroll can not come out of the bullpen every day and reach back for that particular pitch."

Much of the second-guessing in baseball involves defensive changes. Many teams, such as the Reds, try to pull some of their strong hitters and insert defensive players to protect the lead in the later innings.

Coleman also expressed his views on international expansion and the designated hitter in the National League. He could forsee neither one in the immediate future.

Coleman said the dollar differences between the countries involved would be a problem. Several of the box seats in other countries would sell for one dollar or less.

As far as the designated hitter is concerned, he pointed out that the American League was using it to draw attendance because clubs lagged so far behind the National League. With a player just in the lineup to hit, Coleman said the people are not seeing the complete athlete.

Turning to the Reds, Coleman spent a great deal of his time talking about last season's disappointing second place finish and what the future holds for Cincinnati. Some changes are already being planned by President Bob Howsam.

"We do not really need that much," Coleman noted. "The need of a third baseman and more pitching seem to be high on our list."

"Good pitching is always tough to find," he cited. "Gary Nolan, who is recovering from arm trouble and presently pitching in the Florida Instructional League, remains an open book. Right now, he is not having any troubles pitching in Florida. We also have some fine young pitching talent in the system."

Coleman said he doubted if first baseman Tony Perez would be traded. Should the trade occur, catcher Johnny Bench would probably lead the league in intentional walks, since pitchers would try to pitch around him. With Perez in the lineup, opposing pitchers can not afford to pitch around Bench.

"Last season, we left a lot of runners on base," added Coleman. "It seems as though we left most of our runners on base against Los Angeles."

"The Dodgers executed well during the season, but they fell flat during the World Series," he said. "Their defense was not the best in the league and they got beat a couple of series' games because of it. Two of the most crucial plays in the series were when Bill Buckner led off the inning with a double and was thrown out trying to stretch it into a triple; and Mike Marshall giving up the homer to Joe Rudi after he failed to take any warm-up pitches."

"Oakland has an outstanding pitching staff," he added. Jim Hunter and Ken Holtzman are exceptional and Rollie Fingers is great coming out in relief."

"Hitters make their living hitting the pitcher's mistakes. When a pitcher is throwing strong, he usually makes one mistake to a batter's every four trips to the plate. A good hitter will take advantage of that one mistake, while a mediocre hitter can not."

Visiting guests were Dan Long with Jack Persinger, Bob McArthur with Don Thompson, student guest Mark Spears from Miami Trace and Rotary foreign exchange student Salvador Lozanog. Visiting Rotarians included Merrill Kaufman and Art Dicks. Program chairman was Bob Simpson.

Unemployment tax cut slated

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The administrator of the Ohio Bureau of unemployment, services says unemployment compensation taxes on Ohio employers will be reduced Jan. 1.

William E. Garnes said the tax will drop two-tenths per cent. The lower tax rate results from the formula in state law, which bases the tax on the amount of money in the Unemployment Compensation Trust Fund.

Garnes said there is more than $783 million in the trust fund.

Business news

BancOhio Corp. increases quarterly cash dividend

The board of directors of BancOhio Corp. recently declared a quarterly cash dividend of 27½ cents per common share and a year-end extra cash dividend of five cents per share, payable Dec. 15, 1974 to shareholders of record Nov. 22, 1974.

These payments, plus the 75 cents paid previously, will make total cash dividends $1.07½ per common share for 1974, a 12 per cent increase over cash dividends paid in the previous year. The payment of 27½ cents as a regular quarterly dividend anticipates a 10 per cent increase in the annual cash dividend rate.

The directors determined that the increased cash dividend was reasonable in view of the significant improvement in the corporation's earnings during the current year. This action attests to the desire of the corporation's management to provide the greatest possible benefits to its shareholders from the improved operating results. BancOhio Corporation has paid regular cash dividends since its inception in 1929.

Philip F. Searle, president and chief executive officer, stated that "present conditions in the financial markets are such that an increase in the cash distribution to shareholders is more appropriate than continuation of the payment of a modest stock dividend as in each of the past eight years. Investors are placing greater emphasis on current yield, and the increase in the regular cash dividend as well as the year-end dividend is in line with investor preference in today's economic climate."

The First National Bank of Washington C. H. is affiliated with BancOhio Corp.

Urge sharing of credits

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — A plan to refuse corporations 7 per cent investment tax credits unless they shared new capital with workers was advanced to President Ford Tuesday as a new weapon in the war against inflation, Mayor Ralph Perk said.

Perk said he suggested the measure to Ford on the ride from Cleveland Hopkins Airport downtown, where Ford addressed a $500-a-plate Republican fund raiser.

Assault charge brings suspended jail term

Municipal Court Judge Omar Schwart suspended $900 of a $1,000 fine and a three-month jail sentence against a Washington C. H. man Tuesday.

Randy D. Nichols, 23, of 1004 Delaware St., pleaded not guilty to a charge of assault, filed on a private warrant. Judge Schwart suspended all but $100 of the fine and the sentence pending two years good conduct.

In one other non-traffic case heard during the Tuesday night court session, Richard W. Hunt, 21, of E. Market Street, pleaded not guilty to a charge of disorderly conduct by a private warrant. He was fined $100 with $90 suspended provided he stay away from the prosecution's witnesses.

In traffic cases, Danny W. Manning, 18, of 803 Broadway, was fined $25 after he pleaded no contest to a charge of failure to yield the right of way.

Randall L. Dawson, 24, of 334 Fifth St., was fined $16 after pleading guilty to a charge of speeding.

Jerry D. Funk, 20, of 526 Fourth St., was fined $15 for speeding after he pleaded guilty to the charge.

Those forfeiting bonds were:

Norbert Kent, 720 Dayton Ave., who forfeited a total of $220 on two charges of unsafe vehicle, fictitious registration and failure to obey a red light.

Edwards, 29, Route 4, failure to stop for a red light, $18; and Chester F. Burlile, 52, of 1114 Rawlings St., failure to yield the right of way, $25.

Rains fall in Southwest

By The Associated Press

Thunderstorms were scattered across much of the Southwest today and rain spotted other sections of the nation.

The National Weather Service said a high flash flood potential existed in Arizona. The rain extended from Southern California into several Plains states.

Showers and thunderstorms also stretched from the Texas Panhandle into northeast Kansas.

In El Paso, Tex., hail the size of small oranges — some of it 3¼ inches in diameter — damaged several homes and automobiles. No injuries were reported.

Parts of New York and the Southeast, including Florida, also were soaked by scattered storms.

Skies were cloudy over the Great Lakes region and New England. But the rest of the nation generally had clear skies.

White-collar crime probed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal prosecutors say they're digging into more white-collar crimes than ever in support of a Justice Department crackdown on corruption in corporate boardrooms and public offices.

"I think everybody has the push on and it's high time," said a Southern prosecutor whose comments were echoed by a score of other U.S. attorneys interviewed about the department's recent emphasis on investigating fraud, embezzlement, political kickbacks and similar crimes. Several asked not to be identified by name.

The prosecutors said they're anxious for the drive to continue although the complex and time-consuming investigations strain their limited manpower. And some are upset with what they consider light treatment of white-collar criminals by judges and juries.

The U.S. attorneys are pressing Congress and the Ford administration for more money to hire more lawyers for those investigations and other duties in civil and criminal cases.

Meantime, many prosecutors say they're prodding state and local authorities to take over the prosecution of such routine cases as drug violations and auto thefts to free more of their own time for corruption probes.

The campaign was born out of the kickback investigation of former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew and the Watergate scandals which shook public confidence in government and especially in the Justice Department.

As part of a bid to regain public support for the department, Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe has promised fair prosecution of the rich and poor alike and urged harsh prison sentences for white-collar crooks.

Some prosecutors said the Agnew and Watergate cases gave them the public support they needed to indict prominent individuals without suffering from accusations that their investigations were politically motivated.

"The Agnew case indicated two things to us — it's possible to crack these cases, and the public damn well wants us to," said Dean C. Smith, U.S. attorney in Spokane, Wash.

The prosecutors were unanimous in appealing for more money to hire more lawyers to handle investigations of whitecollar crime.

"We can't possibly prosecute every crime committed, but right now the emphasis is on white-collar crime," said one U.S. attorney. "I'm finding an increasing determination to defer to local prosecutors on a number of cases so we can go into the white-collar cases."

Despite the department emphasis, some prosecutors are upset that judges continue to treat white-collar criminals leniently.

"We spend $100,000 of the taxpayers' money to build a case and then the guy gets concurrent sentences of three months in prison. I'm not happy with that," complained one prosecutor.

Crash kills 7 persons

ROCKMART, Ga. (AP) — A work train backed into a loaded school bus at a crossing today, killing at least seven children, authorities reported.

Police said there were about 30 children, mostly 10 to 14 years old, aboard the bus. Besides the dead, most of the others on the bus were injured, some seriously.

Witnesses said the repair train had been called to the scene of a derailment during the night and was backing up along the tracks when it hit the bus.

The train dragged the crumpled bus several hundred feet, police said.

When the train came to a halt, the caboose was derailed and fell on top of the overturned bus.

The Polk County coroner first reported that the bus driver, Billy Kellett, had been killed. But police later said he was hospitalized in critical condition.

A spokesman for Southern Railway in Washington said the train was moving about eight miles per hour.

Police investigating stolen auto report

An auto theft, a larceny and an incident of vandalism was reported by Washington C. H. police today. The Fayette County Sheriff's Department investigated a personal injury and a burglary.

While Wanda Crum was talking on her telephone at 3:59 p.m. Tuesday, at her 2011 Heritage Court residence, she thought she heard what sounded like her car being started and driven away. Unfortunately, she was right.

Washington C. H. police, who are searching for the stolen auto, reported that the keys had been in it at the time of the theft.

A brown coat with a white collar valued at $23 was taken from Debbie Lawrence's unlocked car sometime between 2:30 p.m. and 4 p.m. Tuesday, while it was parked in the municipal parking lot on S. Fayette Street, police reported. Miss Lawrence resides at 3516 U.S. 22-E and anyone having information concerning the stolen coat can contact her and the police.

A 24 by 30 inch glass window was broken at the Roy Benson residence, 1216 E. Paint St., at 10 a.m. Tuesday, police reported. The window was valued at $15.

The Lester H. Smith residence in Jeffersonville was burglarized sometime between 6:45 p.m. and 9:45 p.m. Tuesday, the Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported. Fifty dollars in cash was stolen in the burglary.

Charles Williams Jr., 30, New Holland, sustained a broken and lacerated nose and a lacerated right arm, in an accident at Armco, U.S. 35, at 5:15 a.m. Wednesday.

Sheriff's deputies explained Williams was walking through a glass door when it broke causing him to lose his balance and fall, hitting his face on the metal brace bar. He was taken to Fayette Memorial Hospital and treated for the injury.

Four mishaps checked here

An area youth was cited by Washington C. H. police for reckless operation, when he became involved in an accident at 8:36 p.m. Tuesday.

Kevin A. Pfeiffer, 16, of 717 Carolyn Rd., told police his foot slipped off the brake pedal and hit the gas while he was turning left off McLean Street, onto Lindberg Avenue. He lost control of his car and collided with a tree on the property of Roger Whitley, 623 Park Drive. He was unhurt in the mishap.

Police reported a second accident and the Fayette County Sheriff's Department investigated two accidents, one Tuesday and one Wednesday morning.

In her effort to watch for school children crossing the street, the car Nona C. Knisley, 68, Hickory Lane, was driving sideswiped a parked car belonging to Kenneth Horney, 1231 Washington Ave.

Police reported the accident, which occurred on High Street, near the Warren Street intersection, at 12:38 p.m. Tuesday.

The driver's door of a car belonging to Larry Zugg, Rt. 5, was severely damaged by a hit-skip driver, sometime between midnight and 2 a.m. Sunday, the Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported.

Zugg's auto had been parked at Club 22, CCC-Highway-W when the hit-skip incident occurred.

The brakes on a semi driven by John D. Stewart Jr., 32, Louisville, Ky., gave away and caused the truck's trailer portion to roll into the front of a semi driven by Charles L. Heller, 34, Perryville, at 7 a.m. Wednesday, while the big trucks were parked at Garner's Union 76 station, I-71 and U.S. 35 and both driver's were asleep within them.

Sheriff's deputies reported the Heller truck was moderately damaged and the Stewart truck slightly damaged. The trailer on the Stewart truck which struck the front of the Heller truck was owned by John F. Peake, New Albany, Ind.

No one was injured.

Glenn endorses Dumford

COLUMBUS — U.S. Senate candidate John H. Glenn today endorsed the candidacy of Laurence A. (Bucky) Dumford, of Washington C.H., for the Ohio House of Representatives from the 77th District.

"If we are to provide responsive government at the local levels it will be by electing candidates to office like Bucky Dumford," Glenn said in a statement issued from his Columbus campaign headquarters.

"AS A commissioner of Fayette County for 12 years he proved himself a capable servant of the public. His interests — public school financing and tax revision — are of vital concern to the people of the 77th District.

"He strongly stresses the importance of local government, which is refreshing in an age of increasingly centralization and depersonalization of government," Glenn added.

Dumford, a local businessmen reared in Fayette County, is a graduate of Ohio State University. For 12 years he served on the Fayette County Board of Commissioners and he is now in his second year as a member of the Ohio Gov. John Gilligan's Local Government Services Commission.

The 45-year-old Dumford was an unsuccessful candidate for the 77th District seat in the 1970 election.

Deserters could quit, escape cost

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— Military deserters processed under President Ford's clemency offer could quit the public service jobs they agree to work and would likely face no criminal action, a military spokesman said Tuesday.

U.S. Marine Corps Lt. Dale Baird, public affairs officer for the President, said the only thing binding a deserter to the alternate service is "his word of good faith."

Baird, information officer at the nation's only processing center for war resisters, said such persons would not be subject to prosecution.

"We only have his word—his good faith pledge—that he will stay at the job for the time he's suppose to serve," Baird said.

"If we get thousands who quit their jobs, something will have to be done," he said.

Baird said less than one-third of the 12,000 deserters eligible for the conditional amnesty have indicated an interest in accepting the President's offer.

He said more than 50 deserters a day are being processed at the Joint Processing Center at Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Ind.

"We've had 3,899 calls," he said, but only 1,327 have surrendered to authorities.

"I look for the big push to come in January. A lot of people in Canada are holding off" to see the treatment given those who accept amnesty, Baird said.

Ex-gridder sets visit with Ford

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Silas McGee, a retired longshoreman, says he is going in style when he attends his high school football team's reunion at the fancy home of an old teammate.

President Ford's engraved invitation requests his company at 11 a.m., Nov. 28, at the White House.

"First class, first class. No other way," says McGee. "When I get to the White House, I'll be dressed as the ambassador from Timbuktu. Hellllooo! Here I am. What an unanticipated pleasure!"

McGee was a halfback and end on a team at South High School on which Ford played center.

McGee said everyone called the President "Junie because he was Gerald Ford, Junior."

Over 100 attend

Progressive school conducts open house

The Fayette County Progressive School conducted an open house Tuesday night at its new facility in the Sunnyside Elementary School and it was obvious who enjoyed it most.

The children from the school's preschool, primary, intermediate and junior classes "did their own thing" for the over 100 people attending with song and dance.

The students provided entertainment with a variety of songs they had learned and culminated the program with a little "hokey-pokey" before returning to their classrooms to exhibit their handiwork to the public.

Carl Whitaker, administrator at the school for the last three years, spoke on the need to approve the .65-mill levy, being proposed for additional operating costs.

IN 1967, the state legislature passed the 169 Act and created boards of mental retardation. Fayette County initiated a program in our county at that time in the First Presbyterian Church with only eight children.

"Now the school has 45 students enrolled and has moved to the Sunnyside building where we think we are using it to our best advantage," Whitaker said.

The proposed levy increases the present budget of $61,000 to $63,000. According to Whitaker, the proposed levy can be justified by the increased expenses in moving to the larger building from the Washington Junior High School building, increased enrollment, staff and operating costs due to inflation.

Whitaker said the new levy would be on a five-year projection and would also include an adult activities center with the school next fall. Under the planned adult program, mentally handicapped adults would be paid a certain amount of money to do a menial job such as running paper through a shredder, or as Whitaker said — "all kinds of jobs industry does not want to fool with." The program would find the adults a job they could do while providing them with self-satisfaction at the same time, he added.

"There are possibly 20-30 young adults at home in the county not doing anything right now," Whitaker said, stating the amount was based on a survey conducted last year.

Now, the fate of the progressive school and the adult program rests with voters in the upcoming November election.

FOLLOWING the open house, the Fayette County Board of Mental Retardation held its monthly meeting. Members received a report on the dissemination of information concerning the proposed .65 mill operating levy which will appear on the November ballot. The board is diligently attempting to inform voters of the need for the tax money.

The board authorized Carl Whitaker, school administrator, to investigate the cost of two nursery tables and 12 chairs for the pre-school class. He was asked to check prices on a portable dishwasher for the kitchen.

The board discussed the Miami Trace tax issues which will also appear on the ballot. It voted its support of both the bond issue and the additional operating levy.

There will be no classes at the Fayette County Progressive school Friday, Nov. 1. Teachers will be attending a meeting of the Professional Association for the Retarded to be held in Dayton.

Clay Wade bridge open

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The Clay Wade Bailey Bridge over the Ohio River between Cincinnati and Covington, Ky., was to be reopened at 1 p.m. today, eight years after it was closed.

U.S. 25, 42 and 127 will be rerouted over the span, which is named for a Frankfort, Ky., newsman.

The old bridge, called the C&O, was closed to traffic in 1968 following an inspection of all Ohio River spans brought on by the Silver Bridge collapse.

The railroad portion of the bridge remained in service and highway traffic was rerouted over Interstate 75.

The reouting left Cincinnati and Covington with daily traffic backups on the interstate during rush hours.

The new span will have three lanes.

MONSTER'S CHAMBER — If you like to get scared, the haunted house sponsored by the Wilmington Jaycees will give you much more than your dollar admission's worth. The house, located at 352 Prarie Avenue (same location as last year), is an annual project of the Jaycees. It's a good deal too. Not only is it well worth the $1 admission, but the money goes to a worthy cause since the Jaycees are trying to raise $8,000 in order to qualify for federal funding which will add $30,000 to the $8,000 sum enabling them to construct a new youth center in Clinton County. The house can be toured from 7:30 until 11:30 p.m. through Oct. 31. (Mark Thellmann photo)

New form of art founded?

BY MARK THELLMANN

A 31-year-old Jeffersonville man may have founded a new form of art, "chain-saw furniture."

You really can't blame him though. Virgil Barker has been cutting firewood for the past 10 years and that can become rather boring after awhile, so to make it more interesting, Barker started playing around with his chain saw, cutting chairs and benches out of logs.

He got his brother Marvin, who is 26, interested also and now his family and friends (he has never sold any of his work to anyone) have furniture around the home and yard as buccolic as can be.

IT'S QUITE attractive too. Barker came into the Record-Herald last week and showed off some of his projects. The most interesting was a ball enclosed in a wooden frame the shape of a box. The ball could be turned inside the box frame, for it was unattached; but could not be removed, as it was too big — it was trapped inside the frame!

Barker explained the ball and box was cut from just one solid piece of wood! It was like viewing one of those pennies inside the glass jug, Ottice Stookey is always giving out, or the well-known ship within a bottle which everyone has seen at one time or another.

Barker is also a painter during the summer months and although it is not known how long he has been doing this, it'll be interesting to see what happens when he gets bored and starts "creative house painting."

Aging to become major problem

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — "Aging, that is growing old, is a problem in our society," an Ohio State University professor of psychology said Tuesday.

By the year 2000, one person out of six in the United States in the group of "older American" said Dr. Dorthy W. Jackson.

More people are living longer, Dr. Jackson said. As a result, the lives of the aged living now are different that those of the past century. The aged and their families must be taught to cope with the resulting differences and problems, she added.

The most significant change is in the marriage relationship, Dr. Jackson said. Couples now spend more years together without children and must learn to re-establish a husband-wife relationship.

Old folks must learn to cope with the physical changes of aging, the changes in role from parent to grandparent, the feeling of a loss of personal power and identity, the fear of loneliness following loss of a mate, the changing world and lifestyles around them, and the fear of senility and the fear of dying, Dr. Jackson said.

Society can cope with these problems, Dr. Jackson said, but only individual personal awareness will change the negative attitudes and myths about the over-65 generation and the process of growing old.

Speaking to a group of women attending the Fourth Annual Women's Day at Ohio State University's Fawcett Center For Tomorrow, Dr. Jackson asked each of them to think about their attitudes towards their aged parents or grandparents.

Dr. Jackson said most Americans picture old folks as sickly, accident-prone and unable to live on their own. She said this negative picture serves as a self-fulfilling prophecy in too many cases.

Conversely, many Americans revere the "golden age myth" which says the "best is yet to be" late in life, Dr. Jackson said.

In reality, neither picture is true, Dr. Jackson stressed. Americans must establish a realistic picture of being old and realize that there are more options available to the aged and their families than those defined by tradition and past relations.

Once considered too dry to support extensive agriculture, Nebraska in fact lies over great groundwater reserves, National Geographic says. At least 40,000 shallow wells and many storage reservoirs irrigate more than 5,000,000 acres.

Ohio Perspective

Ohio Democrats hoping for big turnout

By TOM DIEMER
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — If they get big turnouts in traditionally strong Democratic areas, party strategists believe 1974 will be a big year for Democrats in Ohio.

"Our whole thing is to identify our strength and deliver that strength on election day," said Eugene "Pete" O'Grady, campaign manager for Gov. John J. Gilligan.

The major Democratic strongholds are not difficult to identify. They are the highly-unionized, northern industrial areas — Toledo in the northwest and most of the northeastern corner of the state.

The Democratic strategy is simple — bring out the voters in droves in these districts and work hard to win votes in what they consider to be safe independent areas.

But, getting out the vote may prove a formidable task in a year marked by widespread voter disillusionment and apathy. Some political analysts think the Watergate scandal will hurt both parties, with large numbers of voters staying home Nov. 5.

Even with a national hero as an overwhelming favorite in the U.S. Senate race and with an incumbent governor, Democratic insiders are hesitant to predict any landslide.

Not so O'Grady, a former Democratic state chairman. Sitting in his cluttered campaign office in downtown Columbus, O'Grady said flatly: "I'll predict that the Democratic ticket will be elected from top to bottom."

That will take some doing, most observers figure.

Even assuming victories for all Democratic incumbents, state Rep. Richard Celeste has a tough fight with incumbent Lt. Gov. John W. Brown and state Sen. Tony P. Hall appears to be a decided underdog against Secretary of State Ted W. Brown.

O'Grady is encouraged by an independent poll. During the last week of September it showed John Glenn leading Republican Ralph Perk by an astronomical 50 points in the Senate race and Gilligan ahead of former Gov. James A. Rhodes by 11 points. The poll had 16 per cent of the vote undecided in the gubernatorial contest.

A Republican poll reportedly showed Rhodes to be only a few points behind.

O'Grady thinks Gilligan will do better in his home town of Cincinnati after losing Hamilton County in 1970 and claims there is a "surprising interest in Democrats this year in traditionally-Republican small counties.

"Within the last three weeks, everything has come together," O'Grady said in mid-October.

Gilligan's 53 per cent plus victory in 1970 over former state Auditor Roger Cloud pinpointed the Democratic strongholds. Gilligan captured only 34 counties to Cloud's 54, but he piled up big margins in densely populated areas like Lucas, Cuyahoga, Summit and Mahoning counties, reflecting an edge for Democrats in registered voters in the state.

Gilligan defeated Cloud in all of the counties in the northeastern corner and did well along Ohio's eastern border in Columbiana and Jefferson and on southward to Belmont and Monroe counties.

Then, there is little Pike County surrounded by generally GOP areas in south-central Ohio. Pike gave Gilligan a 1,163-vote margin out of fewer than 1,700 votes cast in 1970. Party officials point out the county has been voting Democratic since Civil War days.

Democratic strength in the state was badly shaken by Sen. George McGovern's ill-fated 1972 presidential campaign.

Only Lucas and Athens counties gave McGovern the edge, the latter due largely to the student vote at Ohio University. Even Youngstown, rock-ribbed Democratic country, went for former President Nixon by 1,700 votes.

Democratic campaign officials do not appear worried that Gilligan will lose any traditionally-safe areas this year. The governor's people have not had the problems that McGovern's staff had in working with local party officials.

Nor are internal problems on the local level expected to harm the statewide ticket. Although Democratic factionalism has contributed to two election victories for GOP Mayor Ralph J. Perk in Cleveland, Gilligan won Cuyahoga County by 67 per cent four years ago.

"We expect him to repeat that margin of victory," said one state party official.

There is no apparent complacency in the Democratic camp, due in part to fears over a low turnout and published reports that Rhodes is gaining ground.

"It all depends on the turnout," a party spokesman said.

Food jumps in price across Ohio

CHICAGO (AP) — Food prices jumped 2 per cent in Cleveland during September and 1.3 per cent in Cincinnati, the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics has reported.

The bureau said the food price index hit 165.9 in Cleveland and 167.2 in Cincinnati. That means that $100 worth of food bought in 1967, the base period, now would cost $165.90 in Cleveland and $167.20 in Cincinnati.

Increases for the year were 11.3 per cent in Cincinnati and 10.5 per cent in Cleveland.

The bureau said dairy products were the only foods showing a price decline during the month, dropping 0.2 per cent in Cincinnati and 0.7 per cent in Cleveland. But even with the drops, the bureau said, dairy product prices in Cincinnati were 19.2 per cent above a year ago and were 16.6 per cent above the price last year in Cleveland.

Meat, poultry and fish prices showed an increase from a month ago, but a drop from a year ago, the bureau said.

Cleveland showed a 3.4 per cent increase last month, but a 11.8 per cent drop from last year, while Cincinnati showed a 2.1 per cent increase during the month but a 8.5 per cent drop from prices a year ago.

Cincinnati and Cleveland were the only two Ohio cities for which figures were available.

Top offensive, defensive units to clash

Panthers seek Homecoming victory

By LARRY WATTS
Record-Herald Sports Editor

Last week, Miami Trace sealed the coffin on Wilmington's final chances in the South Central Ohio League race. This week, the Panthers have the opportunity to do the same thing to Greenfield when the Tigers visit for the Panthers' annual Homecoming celebration.

Confronting each other will be the league's most potent offensive unit and the stingiest defense. In three SCOL games, the Panthers have produced a total of 100 points on the scoreboard. All five of the Tigers' victories, three of which have been in the league, have been shutouts.

In climbing to a 5-2 season record and 2-1 mark in league play Panther coach Fred Zechman is finding more versatility in his offensive unit. In addition to the always dangerous presence of fullback Jeff Sagar and quarterback Tom Riley, the running of halfback Rex Coe and the receiving of Jay Mossbarger and Jeff Smithson has also helped open up the attack.

Sagar and Riley have been the main thrusts in the Panthers' offense throughout the season. Sagar has now collected 737 yards in 117 carries for a 6.3 average per carry and he has also scored 74 points. On the ground Riley has picked up 409 yards in 88 carries; and through the air, he has connected on 32 of 60 passes for 412 yards.

In the last two games, Coe has been proving himself a worthy replacement for the damaging loss of senior Tom Pfaff from the lineup. In the 38-13 win over Wilmington, Coe carried the ball 18 times for 75 yards and scored 10 points.

Both Mossbarger and Smithson have been coming through with some key pass receptions, which have helped boost Riley into the league lead in passing. Mossbarger caught his first touchdown of the season last week and now has 18 points for the year. Smithson made two clutch third down receptions for 31 yards against the Hurricanes.

"Their defense is very physical," replied Zechman. "This is the only defense we will be facing that has a 5-3 formation. Since we do not usually encounter this type of defense, it gives us some offensive blocking adjustments. We have to take away some of our standard offensive plays and insert some new ones for this game."

"Our kids know the challenge is there and they just have to respond to Greenfield's defense," Zechman continued. "With five shutouts, the Tigers have to be rated as the best overall defensive unit in the league."

If Zechman considers Greenfield's defense as tops in the league, then the Panthers must be rated very close to them. In their three league games, the Panthers' have yielded an average of 129 total yards to the opponents.

"Although Wilmington's Jackie Watson gained 143 yards against us last week, I thought that was the best we have contained him in his four years," Zechman pointed out. "He only had a couple of big gains, which can be expected of him."

Even though Greenfield has been diversifying its offense more in recent games, the center of the attack is still tailback Gary Barr. Barr has rambled for 784 yards in 192 carries this season. He is averaging 112 yards in nearly 28 carries per game.

In recent games, Henry Craig and John Purdin have been seeing more action in carrying the ball. This has helped take a lot of the pressure off of Barr.

"With Kevin Kensinger at quarterback, the Tigers have a good play action in the passing game," Zechman indicated. "Overall, I feel their offense is very balanced and possess a lot of power."

Both defenses will be yielding nearly the same amount of weight. Miami Trace's offense will have an eight-pound advantage per player over the Tigers' defense. Greenfield's offense carries a seven-pound advantage on the Panthers' defense.

Zechman and his staff found it very difficult to select defensive players of the week from the Wilmington game. Six players finished with 13 or more defensive points in the game. Heading the list were Mossbarger and Greg Cobb with 26 points each. Ron Warnock had 22 points, Rick Saunders came through with 15, Riley had 14 and freshman Art Schlichter had 13.

Mossbarger made five individual tackles, one of which was behind the line of scrimmage. He also had three assists and was credited with five pass rushes.

Cobb, who is being selected player of the week for the fourth time, totaled six individual tackles, one of which was behind the line of scrimmage. He also had nine assists and two pass rushes.

Riley and Sagar were chosen as co-offensive players of the week. It was the fourth time for Sagar and Riley's third time.

In addition to his rushing yardage of 117 yards in 19 carries and three touchdowns, Sagar was also credited with an outstanding blocking game. Riley came through with some pass plays and runs in crucial third down situations.

The best hits of the week were credited to Ron Warnock on defense and Smithson on offense. Warnock received his honor when he sacked Wilmington quarterback Duane Earley. Smithson delivered a crackback block on Wilmington linebacker Noel Van Pelt.

Since Greenfield is a 3-1 in the SCOL and 5-2 overall, Zechman considers this a must game for the Panthers. After Friday night, one of the teams will no longer be in competition.

Easy win predicted for OSU

HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "We expect another team to try and beat us, but we're not going to let it happen."

So says Ohio State's Woody Hayes as the 6-0 Buckeyes get ready to defend their No. 1 ranking against 1-5 Northwestern.

"Only way to avoid it is preparation," adds Hayes. "We'll be ready. We do want to keep all four backs running."

The four main backs are tailback Archie Griffin, who's averaging 6.9 yards a carry, quarterback Cornelius Greene at 6.3, fullback Champ Henson at 5.0 and wingback Brian Baschnagel at an astonishing 13.1. Those averages have remained pretty much the same for the last few weeks and Hayes, believe it or not, isn't happy about it.

"We've had offensive consistency around 73 per cent for three straight weeks," he said. "The reason we're not getting better is using other players so much."

The number will stay around the 73 per cent level again as the Buckeyes use a lot of players in beating Northwestern ... 56-7.

Last week's score was 45 right, 17 wrong and two ties for .726, bringing the season's scoreboard to 279-108-12—.721. All three Upset Specials went down the drain, however, although West Virginia came within seconds of beating Miami, Fla., before losing by a point.

Oklahoma 56, Kansas State 7: If that's a good score for Ohio State, why not for Oklahoma?

Michigan 35, Minnesota 14: For the Little Brown Jug Minnesota gets jugged and mugged.

Alabama 42, Texas Christian 7: TCU won't stop 'Bama, even though the Horned Frogs have won all three previous meetings with the Tide.

Auburn 20, Florida State 7: Auburn has never lost to FSU and there's no reason to start now.

Southern California 34, Oregon State 7: USC's passing game might not be as good as it should be, but the ground game, led by Anthony Davis, is no problem.

Notre Dame 14, Miami, Fla. 7: Hurricanes come on strong to avenge last year's 44-0 shellacking, but not strong enough.

Upset Special of the Week ... Baylor 21, Texas A&M 20. You know the times are changin' when the winner of this one is still unbeaten in Southwest Conference play.

Second Upset Special ... Georgia Tech 24, Tulane 21: Yellow Jackets are unbeaten at home since the Notre Dame opener.

Third Upset Special ... Princeton 24, Penn 21: A prize to anyone who can spell Snickenberger and Bellizeare.

Bonus Upset Special ... Indiana 20, Wisconsin 15. Indiana lost by 40 to Ohio State, Wisconsin lost by 45, which means the Hoosiers are five points better. Doesn't it?

Nebraska 28, Oklahoma State 17: Cornhuskers were fit to be tied last year; this time, they're Humming ... with Dave Humm.

Penn State 31, West Virginia 14: Lions always wins this one ... or does it just seem that way?

Texas Tech 24, Southern Methodist 17: Red Raiders can't afford another SWC setback.

Florida 27, Duke 14: Unless the Gators decide to look ahead to Auburn.

Texas 35, Rice 7: Officials won't lose this one for the Owls.

Arizona State 41, New Mexico 14: Last year it was 67-24.

Maryland 24, North Carolina State 22: This game and next week's meeting with Penn State will prove how good the Terps really are.

Arizona 35, Brigham Young 28: Wildcats are back in their league — the Western Athletic Conference — after losing their unbeaten record to Texas Tech of the Southwest Conference.

Miami of Ohio 35, Toledo 17: Redskins have allowed only 30 points all season.

Georgia 24, Kentucky 21: But it could go the other way ... and isn't that a great line?

Temple 28, Delaware 14: Good University Division team beats good College Division team ... which should really be in the University Division.

Rookie Drew exploding in NBA

By The Associated Press

Rookie John Drew says he's shocked to be in the pro basketball ranks, which is exactly the way he's making some other people feel.

Drew poured in 41 points to lead the Atlanta Hawks to a 125-92 rout of the Philadelphia 76ers Tuesday night. He is now averaging 32.3 points per game after three National Basketball Association outings.

"Drew's having a lot of fun," said Atlanta Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons. "Maybe one day he'll wake up and realize he's in the NBA and get nervous. But I don't really think that's going to happen .... He's a great offensive player, and he's getting better on defense every day."

Drew, meanwhile, says he's plenty nervous.

"I'm still shocked to be up here," said Drew. "I've read about people like Tom Van Arsdale and Billy Cunningham, and now I'm playing against them. I've been nervous all day."

Atlanta jumped out to a 14-2 lead over Houston and never looked back. Dwight Jones added 24 points and Lou Hudson 23 for the Hawks. Clyde Lee led Atlanta rebounders with 21 while Drew, who is barely 20 years old, had 18.

Elsewhere in the NBA, the New York Knicks beat the Houston Rockets 110-100, the Buffalo Braves silenced the New Orleans Jazz 134-118, the Milwaukee Bucks nipped the Chicago Bulls 92-90, the Washington Bullets got past the Kansas City-Omaha Kings 123-121 and the Portland Trail Blazers edged the Golden State Warriors 107-106.

In the American Basketball Association, the San Diego Q's edged the Memphis Sounds 109-106 and the Spirits of St. Louis beat the Virginia Squires 118-112.

The Milwaukee Bucks erased a four-point deficit in the final 38 seconds to beat the Bulls. Bob Dandridge scored a pair of baskets to tie the score, then Lucius Allen stole the ball and sank a pair of free throws with two second left for the victory.

Bob McAdoo scored 33 points and grabbed 22 rebounds to pace Buffalo past the winless New Orleans Jazz.

Wes Unseld's basket with 13 seconds gave the Bullets their victory after Nate Archibald had tied the score with a basket with 32 seconds to go. The Kings had a last chance to tie, but Jimmy Walker missed in the closing seconds. Elvin Hayes had 35 points for the Bullets, 22 of them in the first half.

Rams trade Hadl to Packers

The National Football League played musical chairs — with quarterbacks.

By the time the game was over, four clubs had new quarterbacks.

The Los Angeles Rams had the biggest surprise Tuesday, final day for interclub trading — and got the biggest reward, five draft choices from the Green Bay Packers for John Hadl.

That's right, the Rams traded away John Hadl, the quarterback who made all pro after leading them to a 12-2 record last year. Hadl couldn't get the Los Angeles offense to move this year.

It meant that James Harris' promotion to starter is permanent. The 27-year-old black quarterback threw three touchdown passes last Sunday and got the Los Angeles offense cracking for the first time in 1974.

In the other deals involving quarterbacks, Craig Morton, the disenchanted Dallas Cowboy backup man, was sent to the New York Giants, who dealt journeyman veteran Norm Snead to the San Francisco 49ers, who then traded Joe Reed to the Detroit Lions.

Archie Manning, however, stayed with the New Orleans Saints, who apparently couldn't make the right deal for their quarterback by the 4 p.m., EDT, Tuesday trading deadline, even though he was benched last week. Manning had been on the trading block, reliable league sources reported.

In the day's other exchanges, defensive tackle Curley Culp and a 1975 No. 1 draft choice went from the Kansas City Chiefs to the Houston Oilers for defensive tackle John Matuszak and a No. 2 draft pick for 1976. Cornerback Jim Marsalis was dealt by the Chiefs to the Denver Broncos in exchange for tackle Tom Drougas and linebacker Tom Graham.

Buckeyes' Thompson shows brilliant play

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Call him Ken Thompson, as the Ohio State football press book does.

Call him Kenneth Edward Thompson Jr., as the university record does.

Call him Ed Thompson, as his coaches and teammates do.

But he's "Welcome" Thompson to George Hill, the defensive coordinator for the nation's top-ranked college team.

The 19-year-old sophomore from Waverly, Ohio, will make his second successive start Saturday at Northwestern, filling in for injured regular Ken Kuhn.

"He's playing great football," Hill said, "and you can underscore great.

"He's really come along and it couldn't have come at a better time," Hill added.

The 222-pound Thompson went in when Kuhn was hurt in the second quarter against Wisconsin two weeks ago. He was in on 17 tackles in that victory and followed with 11 participations last week against Indiana.

Thompson started his Ohio State career as a quarterback, but recalled, "I was pretty low." He was no better than fifth string when his chance came to join the defense.

Athletic recognition isn't new for the Buckeye sophomore.

A 14-time letter winner in high school, he captained his football, basketball and baseball teams. Most of his career was spent at New Boston Glenwood before he switched to Waverly after his senior football season.

"My parents moved," he explained. "My dad got a new job, superintendent of schools in Pike County so I played basketball at Waverly as a senior."

Quarterbacking and basketball, Hill believes, made Thompson a better linebacker. The Ohio State coach said it helps Thompson understand pass patterns better and has improved his reaction.

Toronto Toros gain WHA leadership

By The Associated Press

The Toronto Toros have staged a bullish charge into the World Hockey Association's East Division lead, winning their first four games by scoring 24 goals and giving up just eight.

And Coach Billy Harris, occupied the entire preseason with the Team Canada series against Russia, is impressed.

"There's nothing these guys can't do when they put their mind to it," Harris said Tuesday night after an 11-2 embarrassment of the Minnesota Fighting Saints.

Right wing Tom Simpson scored four times for Toronto, while Pat Hickey added three to the rout. In other WHA contests, the San Diego Mariners dumped the Cleveland Crusaders 5-2, and the Quebec Nordiques clubbed the Houston Aeros 7-2.

In the National Hockey League, the New York Islanders trimmed the Atlanta Flames 2-1; the Detroit Red Wings blanked the Washington Capitals 3-0; the Philadelphia Flyers dropped the Los Angeles Kings 4-2, and the Minnesota North Stars stopped the Vancouver Canucks 3-2.

Andre Lacroix scored twice and set up two other goals to help San Diego beat Cleveland, while Pierre Guite scored a pair to lead Quebec past Houston. The Aeros, last year's WHA champions, are off to a surprisingly weak start, having lost three of their first four games.

Rookie Bob Bourne scored a breakaway goal on Atlanta's Phil Myre with 43 seconds remaining to give the Islanders their triumph over the Flames. Gerry Hart gave New York the lead after just 1:12 of play, but Pat Quinn tied it for Atlanta early in the third period.

Andre Dupont's 35-foot slap shot at 5:08 of the final session helped the Flyers beat Los Angeles, which was undefeated in its first five games — all on the road — but 1-1 since arriving home.

Rookie Bill Lockhead scored his fourth and fifth goals of the young season and Jim Rutherford stopped 25 Washington shots as the Red Wings handed the expansion Capitals the third shutout of their seven-game NHL history.

Henry Boucha's two third-period goals combined with sharp goaltending by Cesare Maniago to carry the North Stars past the Canucks and end Vancouver's unbeaten streak at four games.

Moscow, Lake Placid win Olympic games

VIENNA (AP) — Moscow and Lake Placid, N.Y., were awarded the 1980 Olympic Games today.

The International Olympic Committee voted for Moscow and against Los Angeles, the other candidate, for the Summer Games.

Lake Placid was the only candidate for the Winter Games.

THIRD CONSECUTIVE LOSS — Washington's varsity and reserve volleyball teams were dealt their third consecutive losses by Clinton Massie, Tuesday evening. The varsity, now 5-4 for the year, lost the first game 16-14, won the second 16-14 and dropped the third 15-6. The reserves, falling to a 4-5 record, won the first match 15-4, lost the second 15-11 and faltered in the third 15-8.

Top scorer for the varsity was Cindy Vaughn with 13 points. Janet Davis had 21 set-ups and Betsy Krieger had 18.

Leading the reserves' scoring was Joyce Warner with 15 points. Rene Johns, Sharon Redden and Warner each had nine set-ups.

Thursday, the Lions hope to get back on the winning track when they visit Westfall, Thursday afternoon. (Larry Watts Photos)

Alston tabbed top manager

NEW YORK (AP) — Walter Alston, the Los Angeles Dodgers' unflappable general, was named The Associated Press' National League Manager of the Year today.

The stoic Alston, who guided the Dodgers to the National League pennant this season for the seventh time in his 21-year big league career, won in a rout.

Alston outscored Danny Murtaugh, manager of the National League East champion Pittsburgh Pirates, 290 votes to 87. Voting by the nation's sports writers and broadcasters took place prior to the league's playoffs.

Red Schoendienst, whose St. Louis Cardinals battled Pittsburgh down to the end for the East title, finished third in the balloting with 26 votes.

Finishing behind the top three were, Danny Ozark of the Philadelphia Phillies with six votes; Atlanta's Clyde King with three and Cincinnati's Sparky Anderson with two.

Alston took a relatively young team to the heights this year. It was his tender, loving care that made champions out of the Dodgers.

"I know that the players have enough to think about on the field, so I try not to give them too many problems in the clubhouse," says the easy-going Alston.

Known as a superb handler of men, Alston's tempered personality gave the Dodgers quiet confidence throughout the tough National League West battle with the Cincinnati Reds. In modern terminology, Alston kept the Dodger ship "rocking steady."

Once asked his philosophy, the dean of major league managers noted: "I pat most everybody on the back and kick the rare ones that need to be kicked."

Alston was born in Hamilton, Ohio, 62 years ago and once worked as a high school basketball coach and science teacher. He entered the Dodger organization with their Trenton, N.J., team and also managed at Montreal before being named the Dodger field boss for the 1954 season.

Alston signed a one-year contract that season, and uniquely has kept up the pattern throughout his glamorous career.

"One-year contracts are a matter of pride with me," Alston says. "I wouldn't want to work anywhere where I wasn't wanted."

Alston's accomplishments stamp him as one of the most successful managers of all time.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Accidents and the Elderly

My father is heading for a broken hip. He is careless, he hurries and pays no attention to safety. He is 77 years old.

I recall a column you once wrote on this subject. Perhaps rereading it would impress him with the need for greater caution.

Mrs. G.B., Ind.

Dear Mrs. B.:

Dr. Carter Rowe, of the Harvard Medical School, wrote a pledge which, he insisted, should be signed by every elderly adult.

The pledge was based on the fact that fractured hips and fractured bones cause the elderly long and protracted months of pain and inactivity.

In most cases, carelessness is the basis for the injury. As one grows older, bones become more brittle and more fragile, and are more easily broken by simple accidents and falls.

The pledge: "I hereby promise my children and grandchildren to stop hurrying.

"I will not rush to the door or the telephone.

"I will pause a moment when I stand up.

"I will be sure of my footing.

"I will think before I act."

Add to this pledge the good sense of using a skidless cane, especially in bad weather.

Then attach this pledge to a mirror or a wall so that it can be read often.

Most fractures of the hip occur within the questionable safety of the home. You can help your father by being sure that there is excellent lighting in the home. A night light in the bathroom will avoid many fractured hips.

Scatter rugs are a source of potential danger unless they are anchored to the floor.

Highly waxed kitchen and bathroom floors are attractive but hazardous.

Stairwells are dangerous. An added rail along the wall is an excellent investment in safety.

The toys of grandchildren, haphazardly scattered about the room, are a threat to the safety of visiting grandparents.

Anticipation is the key to the prevention of accidents.

Pilot program launched

Pupils bring public closer to classroom

LITTLEST SPECTATOR — Who says school isn't fun? This little spectator, who sang right along with the kindergarten class, can't wait to grow big enough to go to school.

BY SANDY FOSSON
Record-Herald Staff Writer

For those who may have been shopping in Buckeye Mart in the Washington Square Shopping Center Tuesday or Wednesday, the store is not starting a new day care center.

The group of children nestled back in the furniture department were just students of the Washington C. H. city schools kindergarten classes partaking in a new pilot project.

The project was designed as a preliminary to the observance of National Education Week, Oct. 28-Nov. 1, in order to not only bring pupils to the public, but also bring the public to the classroom.

DURING THE Tuesday morning session, as in the other three classes conducted during the two days, Belle-Aire Elementary kindergartners, under teacher Mrs. Ramona Miller, were given a short tour of the store by the manager and received a simplified explanation of the merchandising process.

The children then established regular class with their teacher in the furniture department. Most did not seem to mind all the eyes watching them while they tried to remember how many toes they had on their feet or what number came before eight.

According to Lewis M. Parrett, elementary coordinator in the Washington C. H. city schools, "The kindergarten groups were chosen to underscore the feelings of naturalness which older children might well lose in such a surrounding."

The kindergarteners from Mrs. Miller's Belle-Aire classes and Mrs. Marlene Martin's Middle School classes were bussed to and from the school. Members of Washington Senior High School's Future Teachers of America organization aided the teachers in getting coats on and lining the youths up for easy dispersal.

According to city school officials, the project may be expanded to other community agencies to increase community involvement and expose the modern educational process.

Secret fund use probed

Dean's credibility attacked at trial

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former White House counsel John W. Dean III testified at the Watergate cover-up trial today that in 1972 and 1973 he made personal use of $4,850 withdrawn from a $350,000 secret White House fund.

The admission was drawn out in cross-examination by defense lawyer John J. Wilson in an apparent effort to discredit Dean's character before the eyes of the jury.

In two days of cross-examination, Wilson has yet to attack the substance of Dean's narration of how he participated for nine months in covering up the Watergate scandals.

Defense lawyers acknowledge privately that six White House tapes heard by the jury so far make it difficult to dent the testimony given by Dean during five days on the witness stand under prosecution questioning.

Dean testified in detail before the Senate Watergate committee about his personal use of money from the White House fund. Its significance in the trial is how it affects the jury's opinion of his character and honesty.

Under cross-examination today, Dean testified that $15,200 in cash was delivered to his office by White House aide Gordon Strachan.

Dean told the jury that on Oct. 12, 1972, the eve of his honeymoon, he took out $4,850, part of which was spent on the trip and part of which was used for miscellaneous expenditures over the next six months.

Wilson repeatedly questioned Dean about the propriety of using the funds without advising anyone at the White House.

"For a period of six months you used money that didn't belong to you, didn't you?" Wilson asked.

Dean: "Yes, sir,"

Dean's blonde wife, Maureen, was present in the courtroom as he described the use of the funds.

The former White House counsel acknowledged that although he placed a $4,850 check written to cash in his office safe with the balance of the funds, there was not an adequate balance in his checking account to cover that amount.

Dean said, however, that he had other personal funds, including a stock brokerage account totaling $80,000 at one point, which he was prepared to use to account for the $4,850.

Dean said that in April 1973, he informed his lawyer about the $4,850 and the more than $10,000 remaining in the cash originally placed in his White House safe.

Thousands of lottery tickets stolen

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— William Horrigan, head of security for the Ohio lottery, says thousands of lottery tickets have been stolen over the past 10 weeks, and hundreds of persons have won $20 prizes by presenting invalid tickets.

Horrigan said Tuesday he will recommend to the commission the hiring of a security staff of 10 persons to investigate the thefts of a total of 12,848 tickets and the fraudulent ticket claims which careless agents have paid.

Meanwhile, the lottery commission announced that eight persons will participate in the Buckeye 300 drawing in Lima Thursday.

Horrigan said there have been 98 burglaries since the first lottery tickets were sold Aug. 12.

There have been about 100 cases a week of fraud in the claiming of lottery prizes, he said.

The fraudulent claims were estimated at $14,000.

The commission has been reimbursing agents for all the prize money they have paid out, Horrigan said, but eventually all the illegally disbursed prize money will have to be paid back to the commission.

A commission official said there have been 14 instances of ticket number alterations.

And James Skelly, public relations director, said there have been some instances in which ticket agents reported tickets stolen then tried to claim prizes with some of the tickets said to have been stolen.

Horrigan said these cases are still under investigation, and no arrests have been made.

Skelly warned that tickets should be purchased only from authorized sales agents.

"If you buy a ticket from a guy on the corner, chances are it's stolen, and if it's stolen, it's valueless," he said.

PREVIEW INTO TERROR — Pictured are some of the terrifying sights within the Mother's Circle haunted house at 102 E. Paint Street. Visitors can be scared this coming weekend from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. Friday and 10 a.m. until 12 p.m. and 2 p.m. through 4 p.m. Saturday. In real life, void of costume, these nice people are Joy Helfrich (witch in doorway and coordinator of the project), Beverly Alkire and her ghost daughter, Jennifer (on the left) and Rita Persinger and her witch daughter Jill (on the right).

Mothers Circle to open weekend haunted house

There is an old house located at 102 W. Paint Street, which will come alive with ghosts and goblins this Friday and Saturday, when the Washington C.H. Mothers Circle opens the door on their second annual "haunted house" project.

The house has been transformed into a number of spine-tingling sights for visitors. There is a man from Mars, a mummy, a trip through a spider-web and many more chilling sights and activities for those brave enough to take the 35-cent tour.

All ghosts will be mothers in costume and at the end of each tour a favor will be presented. The house may be seen from 2 p.m. through 4 p.m. Friday and 10 a.m. until 12 p.m. and 2 p.m. through 4 p.m. Saturday.

Proceeds will go into the Mothers Circle project fund.

KSU trial challenges set

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Preemptory challenges today removed three of the 12 tentatively seated jurors in the trial of eight former Ohio National Guardsmen indicted in the 1970 Kent State University shootings, but two were replaced quickly.

A challenge by the defense led to dismissal of Ralph L. Rumsey of Avon Lake, an air traffic controller at Oberlin. Government challenges brought dismissal of Jessie McQuire of Grafton, a butcher and parttime farmer, and Paul Bechtel of Bucyrus, a county worker there.

Tentatively seated were Thomas Hallauer of Elyria, a heating plant engineer at nearby Oberlin College, and Christine Stroup, a housewife in the Akron suburb of Mogadore.

One of the jurors called as a possible replacement from the original pool of 125 was dismissed by U.S. District Judge Frank J. Battisti when she answered negatively to his question as to whether she considered the defendants innocent until proven quilty.

The government has six of the challenges by which a prospective juror may be rejected without the challenging attorney giving a reason. The defense has 10, but Battisti has said that because of the large number of defendants, he may grant more if necessary in the interests of justice.

The government challenged one man because he is a member of the National Guard. Another was challenged because he said in answer to a question that if he were the prosecutor in the trial, he wouldn't present the case to a jury of 12 persons of the same frame of mind as his.

Two jurors were seated tentatively Monday, the first day of the trial. They were Ralph L. Rumsey of Avon Lake, a Federal Aviation Administration air traffic controller at Oberlin, and Constance Hillson, a 23-year-old housewife from suburban Garfield Heights.

The tentative panel was completed Tuesday with the selection of Alex Gross, a University Heights insurance agent; Paul Mack, a truck driver for a Cleveland department store; George Muntean, 52, a Strongsville toolmaker; Patrick Misanko, 21, an Akron rubber worker; William Pinter of Euclid, a medical photographer for a Cleveland hospital;

Jessie McGuire of Grafton, a butcher and parttime farmer; Paul Bechtel of Bucyrus, a county worker; Gladys Dillon, a Mansfield housewife; Reisha Shapiro, a University Heights secretary and bookkeeper, and Janice

Funeral rites Friday for drowning victim

Funeral services for Paul Detty, 47, Bellview, Fla., who drowned Sunday while fishing in a Florida lake, will be held at 2 p.m. Friday in the Christian Holiness Church, Sixth Street.

The body of the former Washington C. H. resident was discovered by rescuers late Monday in Lake Weir, just south of Ocala, Fla.

Detty, the son of the Rev. and Mrs. C. H. Detty, 426 Sixth St., had been fishing with an acquaintance from a small boat in Lake Weir Sunday afternoon when he stood in the boat causing it to capsize. Rescue attempts proved fruitless.

The Rev. Russell Knisley will officiate at the funeral services. Burial will be in Washington Cemetery.

Friends may call at the Parrett Funeral Home, Washington C. H., after 10 a.m. Friday until the time of services.

Political charges traded

By The Associated Press

U.S. Rep. Thomas Luken, D-Ohio, demanded that top former Nixon officials leave the Ford Administration, and his Republican opponent Willis D. Gradison Jr. charged that Lukens's voting had supported inflationary measures.

Luken, following a debate with Gradison Tuesday at the University of Cincinnati, called for the firings of U.S. Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz, Postmaster General E. T. Klassen, Treasury Secretary William Simon and Federal Energy Administration chief John Sawhill.

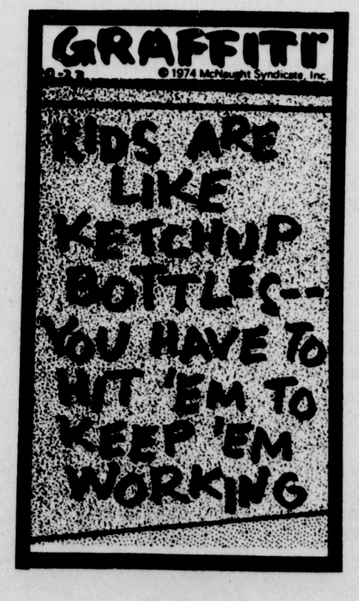
Gradison hit Luken's proposals to cut military spending and added that while he was for cutting government spending, "where I am talking about millions, Mr. Luken is talking about billions.

"I want to know where the cuts are coming so I am sure that they will not hurt the security of the country."

"We have Nixon advisors still doing the same thing they were doing when Nixon was in office," said Luken, referring to the new Soviet wheat sales. "I think Mr. Butz should be fired.



"I am in favor of selling our surpluses. But not until we get prices down at home."

Luken, the third Democrat to be elected in the heavily Republican district this century, is seeking reelection to a full term. He is opposed by Gradison, the Republican he defeated in a special election last spring. Both are former Cincinnati mayors.

"The first thing we had to do was get rid of Mr. Nixon," Luken said in the debate. "I think we performed that with great honor.

"I think that this country has needed a restraining hand, and I think Congress has provided it."

In Hamilton, Democratic candidate for the U.S. Senate John Glenn, said he believes his background in the physical sciences and in technology in the U.S. space program will enable him to make a unique contribution if he is elected.

Ralph Perk, the Mayor of Cleveland.

Glenn said there is currently no senator who has any background in those fields.

In Clermont County, former Gov. James A. Rhodes told a Republican gathering that his Democratic opponent Gov. John J. Gilligan had completed only a small portion of the Appalachian highway.

Rhodes chided Gilligan for all but stopping a program begun in 1970 to attract industry to the county just east of Cincinnati.

Rhodes said he did not attend the dinner for President Gerald R. Ford in Cleveland Tuesday night because of his previous commitment to the GOP in Clermont County.

The county was one of the first to endorse Rhodes and raised $41,000 for his campaign, Rhodes said.

Mayor Perk, the Republican candidate for U.S. Senate, repeated his concern for the third day in a row that Democratic opponent Glenn tried to cover up a bad check allegation against a former Glenn campaign worker.

"I will not allow this potential scandal to be covered up or delayed until after election day," Perk wrote to Glenn in a letter questioning Glenn on the subject. "The voters of Ohio demand this mess be cleared up this week."

Authorities have issued warrants for Louis Quintero, a former Glenn campaign volunteer who was to open offices in the Spanish-speaking sections of Youngstown, Cleveland and Toledo. The warrants contend Quintero wrote bad checks totaling $65,000 allegedly for repayment of loans he obtained in Glenn's name.

Glenn's campaign manager, Stephen J. Kovacik Jr., responded to Perk's letter quoting portions of an editorial in the Cleveland Press on Tuesday:

"It is perhaps natural that ...Perk would hop on this issue, especially since the Perk campaign is sagging badly (according to all the polls.)

"We hope Perk doesn't try to ride this side issue all the way to election day. This election is going to be decided on the issues and on the voters' perception of the candidates' qualities ...And Perk should know better than to imply that it changes Glenn's record for integrity."

Both candidates are invited to appear at a journalism society meeting for a debate tonight in Columbus.

Rep. John Ashbrook, a Republican in Congress since 1960, told his Democratic opponent in the 17th District that it was the top Democratic leaders who maintained tradition in Washington.

Ashbrook was responding to David D. Noble's plea to voters to send new faces, such as his, to Congress because the current leaders are not doing the job. The two candidates debated Tuesday in Mansfield.

Kissinger opens talks in Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger arrives in Moscow today for another attempt to move the Soviet and U.S. governments toward an agreement to curtail the nuclear arms race. But Western observers doubt any dramatic breakthrough is likely.

Kissinger is believed to have sent the Kremlin new proposals to get the strategic arms limitation talks (SALT) moving again, including a schedule of suggested limits on the production of offensive missiles.

Soviet Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev has given no indication what his response might be. But the prospect, in the view of Western observers, is for more difficult bargaining in the second round of SALT talks, which opened in Geneva last month and then recessed to await the outcome of Kissinger's third visit to Moscow this year.

Also on the American secretary's agenda are the future of Arab-Israeli peace negotiations and the possibility of a get-acquainted meeting between Brezhnev and President Ford during Ford's visit to the Far East next month.

In the first round of SALT negotiations in 1972, the United States and the Soviet Union agreed on a permanent limitation of defensive missile systems, known as ABMs. But limits on offensive nuclear arms were only agreed on through 1977.

The two governments have agreed in principle that this pact should be renegotiated to extend its life through 1985. During his visit last March, Kissinger tried to achieve a "conceptual breakthrough" but failed, and at their meeting last summer Brezhnev and former President Richard M. Nixon could only agree that a new agreement should be "completed at the earliest possible date."

Meanwhile, the Russians are pushing ahead with nuclear missile development in an attempt to match the American technology which has produced the multiple-headed missiles known as MIRVs. A new round of Soviet missile tests has begun in the Pacific.

Associated Press correspondent Barry Schweid reported from Washington Tuesday that Kissinger will view the Soviet response to his proposals for arms negotiations as a test of Brezhnev's interest in promoting detente with the new American administration.

Kissinger leaves Moscow Sunday and goes to India and Pakistan. He will also visit Iran, possibly the Middle East and Turkey, and will address the world food conference opening in Rome Nov. 5.

Say existing law would aid housing

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio is not making much use of an existing law that could help the state's floundering housing construction industry, a special governor's committee has decided.

The committee included in a report to Gov. John J. Gilligan a recommendation that wider use should be made of the 1973 "impacted cities" bill.

The bill allows local governments to freeze property taxes for construction and improvements in blighted areas as an incentive for housing improvements.

"Almost no use has been made of this law which has been in effect almost a year now. We are always asking for laws, and then we don't use them," said Al Ratner of Cleveland, president of Forest City Enterprises, Inc. and a member of the 23-member committee named late last month by Gilligan.

At its second meeting in three weeks, the committee of construction, lending institution and labor union representatives recommended a series of actions—some that could be accomplished by executive action and others by the legislature.

The panel repeated its earlier call for the legislature to reconvene next month to complete action on a House-passed bill to create a housing finance agency. The agency would be empowered to issue bonds and guarantee loans for housing for low and moderate income families.

Gilligan was urged by the committee to name a more specialized panel to study federal and state housing regulations.

In for a particularly close look would be federal and state regulations covering interest rates that may be charged by financial institutions.

The committee suggested that the new committee also should study ways of increasing the flow of money into Ohio's mortgage market.

One possible source, it said, could be the state pension funds which already make multi-million dollar investments in numerous types of bonds and securities.

Another recommendation called for the existing Housing and Development Board to "gear up" for possible passage of the pending bill by studying staff needs, seeing what similar agencies in other states have done, and considering the adoption of rules and regulations.

The governor's committee decided against recommending action at this time to repeal or change state usury laws. The laws set a limit of 8 per cent on most housing loans, except those that exceed $100,000.

James I. Huston, committee member who headed an earlier governor's task force on housing, said it was felt the usury laws are "too complex and controversial" and could jeopardize passage of the pending measure.

President attacks Demos as threat

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford, stepping up his personal campaign for Republican candidates, is arguing that a big Democratic election victory could threaten the peace of the world.

After painting this dire picture Tuesday at a GOP rally in Oklahoma City, Ford stopped in Cleveland before returning to the White House and said:

"I call on Republicans in Ohio and the rest of the country to turn out to vote on Nov. 5 like you never have before. Confound the doomsayers. Fool the pessimistic pollsters."

White House reporters were alerted just before Ford spoke in Oklahoma City to expect an important foreign policy statement.

Ford announced no new foreign policy move but, in what Press Secretary Ron Nessen said was a reference to congressional votes to soon cut off U.S. aid to Turkey, the President said:

"I am concerned about the breach of this bipartisanship between a Republican president and a Democratic Congress. . .

"I am concerned that if we get a Congress that is vetoproof, a Congress that has the wrong philosophy—both domestically and internationally—the possibility for the next two years when our country faces the challenges in the Middle East, the challenges in the Mediterranean, the challenges in the Caribbean and in Latin America, the challenges in the Pacific—as we try to work to broaden detente, as we try to continue the normalization of relations with the Peoples Republic of China, as we, in the White House, and those in the Congress who understand bipartisanship and who believe that partisanship should end at the water's edge—if we get the wrong kind of Congress, peace could be in jeopardy."

The Ford statement prompted this response from Democratic National Chairman Robert S. Strauss:

"I was both saddened and troubled at hearing President Ford's shocking implication that the election of Democrats would have an adverse effect on world peace. This kind of rhetoric is reminiscent of the Nixon-Agnew campaign of 1970, when they appealed to the baser instincts of the American public and were soundly rejected."

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, called Ford's statement "a ridiculous charge." Muskie said the President apparently was making a campaign pitch, but it came out as "a horror story instead."

Business would pay more under Muskie economic plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie has proposed requiring business to pay a share of the cost of fighting inflation and recession as a major part of a Democratic alternative to President Ford's proposals.

Sharply critical of Ford's suggested economic remedies, the Maine Democrat said Tuesday night, "If the President wants Americans to eat less, drive less and demand less, he should be prepared to ask some of them to charge less."

Muskie spoke on NBC-TV in a speech billed as the Democratic response to Ford's address a week earlier in Kansas City.

The senator called for the Federal Reserve Board to pump more money into the economy in order to make credit more easily available for housing and small business. And he demanded firm presidential pressure on business and labor leaders to depress wage and price increases.

"I would like to see the President meet regularly with business and labor leaders in all major sectors of the economy to work out guidelines for action and agreements for restraint," Muskie said.

"A temporary cut in payroll (Social Security) taxes to help fatten pay envelopes should be a central part of a trade-off to help moderate wage demands.

"But let us be clear that if vigorous, voluntary wage-and price-control efforts fail, mandatory action must be taken."

The thrust of Muskie's speech was much the same as one last week in which Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield recommended a stronger governmental role against inflation and recession. Mansfield's remarks were in response to Ford's message spelling out his economic proposals, whose centerpiece was a 5 per cent surtax on middle-and upper-income Americans and on corporations.

Dean said the total $15,200 is now held in a noninterest bearing account in a bank in suburban Rockville, Md.

Meanwhile, there was an indication Tuesday that former President Richard M. Nixon may testify in the trial. His attorney, Herbert J. Miller, asked for transcripts of White House tape recordings used in the trial so Nixon can prepare his testimony.

Nixon has been subpoenaed by defendants Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman, and Miller told U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica in a motion:

"It ... may be anticipated that he will be questioned in detail about events and conversations extending back at least 2½ years."

Miller said the tapes will be part of the court record by the time Nixon testifies and that the request "represents a reasonable, simple accommodation, making it possible for Mr. Nixon to begin at once the necessary and helpful refreshing of his memory."

In Tuesday's testimony, Wilson drew an admission from Dean that while the original Watergate burglars were being tried in January 1973, he shredded two notebooks, which came from the White House safe of E. Howard Hunt Jr.

Hunt, then among the original seven Watergate defendants, had compiled names and addresses of men who had helped in the 1971 break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist, according to Dean's testimony.

The former White House counsel said he shredded the notebooks because he had known of the Ellsberg break-in since May or April of 1972.

Dean said that when assistant U.S. attorneys began asking him about the Hunt notebooks, he discovered they had been transferred to his own office safe from Hunt's White House safe shortly after the June 17, 1972, burglary at Democratic National Committee headquarters.

"You did not turn them over to the prosecutors?" Wilson asked about the notebooks.

Dean: "No sir, I destroyed them."

Dean had said that in perusing the notebooks' pages, he saw no names or addresses he recognized and Wilson asked why, then, Dean placed them in his office shredder.

"I had been told there was information in them related to the individuals Mr. Hunt had used in the break-in at Dr. Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office," Dean replied.

Wilson later asked, "Were you consciously making a move to cover up the Ellsberg burglary?"

Dean answered that he knew Hunt had pleaded guilty to the later break-in and that former acting FBI director L. Patrick Gray III also had destroyed other contents of Hunt's safe given him by another defendant, Ehrlichman.

Dean said, "I just went along and did the same thing, knowing that I was destroying material relating to another White House problem."

Wilson pressed further, asking again whether Dean were not covering up the Ellsberg burglary by personally deciding to shred the notebooks.

"Yes sir, I was," Dean said, adding, "I was just getting rid of something I didn't know how to handle so I threw them in the shredder and hoped the problem would go away."

Defense lawyer Wilson also elicited Dean's description of persuading California attorney Herbert W. Kalmbach to raise funds for the original Watergate defendants.

Wilson asked Dean whether, in addition to paying family expenses and lawyers' fees, the purpose of the money as described to Kalmbach was to "keep the mouths of these people shut."

Dean answered, "Yes, sir."

On trial with Ehrlichman and Haldeman are former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, Robert C. Mardian and Kenneth W. Parkinson. All are charged with conspiracy to obstruct justice; all but Mardian with obstruction of Justice; and Mitchell, Haldeman and Ehrlichman with various counts of lying to investigators.

Meanwhile, the jury also heard the sixth White House tape to be played in concert with Dean's testimony.

The tape records an April 16, 1973, meeting during which Nixon is heard nervously attempting to arrange Dean's resignation as White House counsel.

Dean agrees to prepare a letter of resignation for use when needed, but repeatedly tells Nixon that Haldeman and Ehrlichman, then Nixon's closest aides, must quit, too.

Of Ehrlichman and Haldeman, Dean tells Nixon, "I think there is a mythical belief ... that they don't have a problem, Mr. President.

"And I'm, I'm really not sure you're convinced they do, but I'm telling you they do."

We wish to express our sincere thanks to relatives, friends, and neighbors for all the love and kindness, flowers, food and prayers given us during the sudden loss of our beloved husband, father and brother.

Sincere thanks to Rev. Clair Emerick, the Stookey sisters, and Gerstner-Kinzer Funeral Home.

Stocks fall on market

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market fell broadly in moderate trading today, led by auto stocks and glamor issues.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off 14.63 at 648.23 at noon, and issues falling in price outnumbered gainers by 3-1 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said profit-taking was spurred by concern over government reports issued Tuesday showing a drop in durable goods orders acompanied by a 1.2 per cent climb in consumer prices for September.

Avon Products led the Big Board actives, off 1⅜ at 22⅝ including a 99,900-share block at 22½.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index was off 0.58 at 69.15.

Motor stocks were especially weak among the most-actively traded issues, reacting to lower earnings, sales and production levels being reported. General Motors declined a point to 33½, Ford 1⅜ to 31½, and Chrysler ⅝ to 10⅛.

Papadopoulos arrested in Greece

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Former dictator George Papadopoulos and four of his closest associates have been arrested and exiled to a remote part of Greece on charges of plotting to regain power, the government announced today.

The announcement said those arrested with Papadopoulos were his former deputy premiers, Stylianos Patakos and Nicholas Makarezos; one of the hard-line ministers in his regime, Ioannis Ladas; and the former chief of the central intelligence agency, Michael Roufogalis.

Authorities sources said the five men were taken to the small island of Kea, about 60 miles southeast of Athens.

The government's announcement said Papadopoulos and the other four "undertook conspiratorial activity, creating anxiety and the conditions conducive to the disturbance of public peace and order," at the time of upcoming parliamentary elections.

The elections — Greece's first in more than 10 years — have been scheduled for Nov 17 by the reform regime of Premier Constantine Caramanlis.

The announcement also indicated that more charges will probably be filed against the five men. It said their confinement made it impossible for them to escape from Greece while the leaders of the military dictatorship are being investigated.

The defense challenged Misanko because he is a student at the University of Akron, where he is studying business administration. The challenge was overruled.

The eight defendants were indicted last March 29 by a federal grand jury that spent nearly three months investigating the shootings.

They are charged with willfully assaulting and intimidating student demonstrators by firing weapons in their direction and with violating their constitutional right not to be deprived of liberty without due process of law.

Four students were killed and nine wounded by National Guard troops May 4, 1970, during a confrontation between the guardsmen and demonstrators protesting U.S. military involvement in Cambodia.

Scattered light showers and a few isolated thundershowers were reported in the northern counties of Ohio after midnight.

Fair skies are forecast Friday with a chance of showers Saturday and Sunday. Highs are to be in the 60s and 70s with lows in the 40s.

THESE DAYS . . . . By John Chamberlain

Gloom and hope

COLUMBIA, S.C. — Elisabeth Noelle-Neumann, professor at the University of Mainz, has the reputation of being the best pollster in West Germany. She brought some gloomy figures to an international conference on European affairs held here at the University of South Carolina under joint German and American auspices. For 20 years, at various intervals, West Germans have been asked the question, 'Who will be the most powerful in 50 years, the U.S. or the U.S.S.R.?" In 1953, the answers ran three-to-one in favor of the Americans. In 1973, the odds had shifted: the Soviets had it by more than a two-to-one margin.

Curiously, this has not resulted in a defeatist mood in the West German majority. In 1971, when hopes for the Ostpolitik lessening of tensions with the East were in the ascendant, half of the West Germans, in answer to a polling question, said they were for subordinating NATO to neutralization. Only a third of the poll respondents were for sticking to NATO. But in 1974, the country has reversed itself, going back to the division of the early '60s, when 55 per cent favored NATO and 33 per cent were for neutralization — or "Finlandization," as it should be called.

A back-to-the-wall psychology is better than a defeatist psychology, but General Johannes Steinhoff of Bonn, who has been a German representative at NATO, made a most depressing assessment of the future of the NATO alliance. "The defense of the Northern flank;" he said, "is very problematic." Norway has a small population !(3.9 million) spread over 2,000 kilometers; Denmark, more densely populated, spends little on the military and much on welfare. In case of war, the northern region would be entirely dependent on reinforcements in the form of a NATO mobile force. There would be no time for political arguments, especially in view of what General Steinhoff characterized as "the enormous Soviet Northern Fleet. . . the gigantic military complex around Murmansk, only a few kilometers away from the Norwegian border in Finnmarken."

Turning to the south, General Steinhoff painted a picture of "almost insurmountable difficulties" posed by the lack of political stability all across the board from Portugal to Greece and Cyprus. The center region of NATO does better, with West Germany contributing "a remarkable part" that has aroused the "concern of the less potent European partners about the revival of a predominant German military power." But even in the strong center a multitude of different national logistic and weapons systems, "and finally even of doctrines," leads to a wastage of "50 per cent of efficiency. . . in the multinational cooperation." NATO forces employ 17 different kinds of anti-tank missiles, for example. There must be a standardization of equipment, and a "European Rand Corporation or a European Brookings Institute," a "think-tank charged with elaborating a new grand design."

Listening to Johannes Steinhoff, one has visions of the Soviets marching to the English Channel the way Rommel cut through to the French coast in 1940. But then a single statistic, provided off the cuff in a question-and-answer session, lights up the sky. One of the new U.S. "smart bombs" can do the work in an hour that bombs from 30 or 40 planes delivered over weeks and months couldn't do seven years ago. This means that, for a relatively small outlay, there might not be a bridge or a tunnel, or even a tank column left intact in the Carpathian mountains or on the Polish or Hungarian plains if the Soviets did try to move. The new weapons, some of which were proved out in the last hours of our participation in the Vietnam war, introduce such tremendous uncertainties that it is a good bet the European center is safe at least for the moment.

The real danger is that the Communists will be taking a Portugal or a Greece from within. The biggest victory the Soviets have won in recent months is the destruction, by a frivolous cabal of U.S. Congressmen and journalists, of any possibility that the CIA can ever again do an effective job of countering Soviet operatives in a likely spot marked out by the Left for an inside job takeover.

Speed limit enforcement difficult, officials report

By The Associated Press

Many of the nation's governors and mayors say there's little they can do about President Ford's request to enforce the nationwide 55 m.p.h. speed limit except praise it as a good idea.

The governors and mayors, many of whom got telegrams a week ago from Ford asking for stricter speed limit enforcement, say their states are already doing everything possible given the manpower available.

Many officials, including state and local police, say the basic problems are that the public is not convinced that energy conservation will help cut inflation and there are too many speeders for the police to handle, a nationwide Associated Press survey shows.

The survey also showed that:

—With minor exceptions, the nation's governors and mayors plan no special actions on speed limit enforcement because of Ford's telegram.

—Many states have upped manpower to monitor speeding violations since last winter and speeding tickets are up considerably in many states. Nearly all officials say there is no way to further increase patrols, despite Ford's request.

—Some states treat drivers speeding over the national limit but under the old state limit less severely than those exceeding the old limits.

—Many states do not stop drivers traveling above 55 m.p.h. until they approach a set speed — say, 62 m.p.h.

—In scattered areas, judges are dismissing charges against people caught speeding over 55 m.p.h but under old limits; police in some areas give warnings instead of tickets to such speeders.

"South Dakota enforces its speed laws, and will continue to do so," said Gov. Richard Kniep, who plans no changes in state procedures on speeding. "The basic problem with enforcement is that once a sizeable percentage of the population begins to ignore the speed limit, or any law, it is hard to control.

"As a practical matter, if everyone on the highway is traveling 60 miles per hour, a patrolmen can hardly stop them all and can hardly be expected to selectively choose which ones to pick."

"My total reaction to Mr. Ford's proposal is that he's trying to organize a high school cheerleading team," said St. Paul, Minn., Mayor Lawrence Cohen. He called Ford's suggestions "buck-passing."

Rhode Island Gov. Philip W. Noel was one of the few officials who said he planned to increase the number of troopers on the road. He also said he would ask the state police superintendent to meet with local police to advise them of Ford's telegram.

The state of Ohio recently opened a foreign trade development office in Dusseldorf, West Germany, to help Ohio companies increase their share of the multi-billion dollar exporting market, according to the Ohio Department of Economic and Community Development.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

In Ted's case, "T" stands for trouble

DEAR ABBY: I am getting married next month and was very happy about it until last night, when Ted and I had a long talk.

He told me not to expect him to stay faithful to me all our married life because all married men go out on their wives sooner or later and he doesn't think he is going to be any different.

Abby, I love Ted very much, and I don't think I could stand it if I knew he cheated on me.

What should I do?

IN LOVE

DEAR IN: Tell Ted that in this age of the liberated woman, all married women go out on their husbands sooner or later; and since you feel a part of the new sisterhood, the arrangement he proposes is at least negotiable. (In any event, the "T" in Ted stands for trouble.)

DEAR ABBY: I was told a few years ago, if a man didn't want to be drafted in the U.S. Army, he could PAY someone to substitute for him. I know it sounds like a dumb question, but I can't find the answer anywhere. Can you help me?

INQUISITIVE

DEAR INK: It is not a "dumb" question. And it WAS true, but no longer is.

By the terms of the Conscription Act of 1863, a man eligible for the draft could avoid service by providing a substitute, or paying a commutation of $300.

One-time President Grover Cleveland paid a substitute $150 to serve for him in the Civil War. (Cleveland had two brothers in the U.S. Army and a mother and two sisters to support at the time.)

DEAR ABBY: My father-in-law died six months ago and since his death, my mother-in-law has practically lived with us.

She comes over every night for supper and sits all evening. It's not that she stays so long, but I work, and frankly, I would like to be able to come home and just relax.

She has always been very critical of anyone who doesn't keep a spotless house, and although I'm a fairly good housekeeper, I feel she will criticize me. It's gotten to the point where I hate to go home after work because I know she will be there. She's a nice person, and I get along with her, but I need time to be alone.

She spends every weekend here, and I can't accomplish anything because she is always looking over my shoulder.

She's well enough to go everywhere we go. She went on our vacation with us, and if she wants to go next year, I'd just as soon stay home.

I hate to be a stinker, and I wouldn't want to shut her out completely, but this is too much.

My husband is unfortunately her only "child" and she doesn't get along with the other relatives. Help!

SUFFOCATING IN VA

DEAR SUFF: Your problem is not your mother-in-law, it's the lack of communication with your husband. Your objections seem reasonable enough to me.

Have a heart-to-heart talk with hubby, and let him know how you feel.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A. Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Your Horoscope

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 24

ARIES
(March 21 to April 20)

Mixed influences. In all endeavors, be selective and stress quality rather than quantity of effort. News from afar may surprise — pleasantly.

TAURUS
(April 21 to May 21)

Things should start picking up for you now. However, a whole new approach to an undertaking already under way could be your best road to achievement. Postpone new ventures.

GEMINI
(May 22 to June 21)

Do not let yourself be "thrown" by certain distractions. The well-developed Geminian has unusual ability to concentrate on his objectives, so put it to use NOW.

CANCER
(June 22 to July 23)

Do not try to change pre-planned activites or reverse tactics without giving others adequate notice. Careful explanation of your decisions can prevent misunderstandings.

LEO
(July 24 to Aug. 23)

Do not let overoptimism lead you into making dubious investments. In fact, it would be a mistake to make any drastic changes in your financial set-up at the moment.

VIRGO
(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

If extra responsibilities are thrust upon you, accept gladly those which you can reasonably handle but draw the line if anyone tries to take advantage of your good nature.

LIBRA
(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

Caution urged in business negotiations. Certain factors you may have taken for granted may prove otherwise. Be especially careful where details are concerned.

SCORPIO
(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

A sharp and, in some areas, unexpected surge of activity. Keep in step with events — but without anxiety.

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

Certain situations may be more complex than you realize. Avoid any involvement that could damage your prestige.

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

Morning hours favor the exchange of ideas, programming for future activities, business conferences generally. Accent is on the social after 3 p.m.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

Keep both feet on the ground now. There's a tendency to confuse the imaginatively creative with the offbeat and impractical.

PISCES
(Feb. 20 to March 20)

Be prepared for surprises — especially in social circles. Certain odd persons or bizarre doings may raise your eyebrows. But you WILL be amused.

YOU BORN TODAY have all the vigor and enthusiasm for life that's typical of the true native of Scorpio, but also contain within your makeup many of the traits of the now descending Libra — notably your love of beauty and the arts, as well as outstanding gifts of healing and humanitarianism. You have fine executive ability, imagination and originality. Tremendously ambitious, you may, at times, overtax yourself in your desire to get ahead and, even though you have been endowed with a robust constitution, could run health and nerves to the ground. DON'T! Fields in which you could find your greatest success and happiness: music, sculpture, medicine, the theater, journalism or, in the business world, real estate, banking or merchandising.

Letter To The Editor

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

Having briefly discussed planning areas, service areas, recommendations of the governor's Local Government Services Commission which would eliminate local officials as elective officials, and the general concept of regional government, let us devote the next two letters to our reappraisal and how our tax base stands to be affected.

We're all well aware that the sexennial reappraisal of agricultural land, industrial, commercial and residential real property is now under way — to be completed in 1976. This will result in an increase in our taxes, just how much we'll not know until January 1977 when we get our tax notices based on the 1976 duplicate.

This time we'll be assessed on the basis of 35 per cent of "current market value" instead of being based on "appraised value" as in the past. What effect do you suppose land selling anywhere from $1,000 to $1,500 per acre will have on the current market value of your farm?

Remember this also: counties having reappraisals under the new 35 per cent requirement must update valuations each year so that the 35 per cent level is maintained. Heretofore we have had reappraisals only every six years.

So, if real property values continue to rise, your duplicate will also rise because, by law, the 35 per cent level must be maintained.

There are now provisions in the law which make it mandatory for the local taxing officials to scale down any voted millage in the same ratio as the increase in evaluation. This provision does not apply to mandated or unvoted millage. So, your taxes will rise. The only question is now much?

The answer is we don't know yet, but here is the experience of a few counties who completed their sexennial reappraisal in 1972 and an annual update of valuations in 1973. The first figure is the increase as the result of the sexennial reappraisal of agricultural land in 1972 and the second is the increase as the result of the updating of valuations in 1973, both figures are percentage increase:

Athens 107.6, 10.4; Summit 81.8, 10.8; Ashland 68.8, 14.3; Knox 53.4 (not available); Clermont 45.2, 31.7; Noble 39.5, 14.1; Ashtabula 39.3, 10.9; Madison 34.0, 13.0. These eight counties have experienced the same thing Fayette County is now experiencing.

It seems that it would be prudent to exercise vigilance and serious thought in the matter of taxes.

Next time I will give you some discussion regarding efforts to strip us, the bearers of the tax burden, of the protective clauses in the law.

All that I have quoted has been fact.

J. Herbert Perrill

P.S. Did you know your government spent $20,000 studying the biological rhythms of catfish in India? Whatever this means and who cares anyway?

Stay with your boat or canoe in the event it capsizes, says the division of watercraft of the Ohio Department of Natural Resources. Rescue planes and boats can more easily locate the accident by looking for a boat rather than for individuals, and the boater who trys to swim to shore greatly increases the risk of drowning.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Back in 1947, TV cameras were allowed in the House chamber to cover the 80th Congress' opening session. Neither House has allowed live, from-the-chamber coverage of its regular sessions since then. But this may be changing soon.

The Joint Committee on Congressional Operations this month issued a report recommending that live radio-TV coverage of regular sessions of both House and Senate be allowed on a one-year trial basis in 1975.

It notes that while presidents have become increasingly sophisticated in the use of radio and TV, Congress "has followed an approach to communications that is essentially passive and in some instances restrictive."

And it contends that "Congress must now actively seek ways to reach and inform more people through the mass media." It suggests that Congress should try to correct the imbalance of influence created by the ready access of presidents to national radio and television.

To get the ball rolling, the report recommends that the broadcast test start as soon as possible after the opening of the 94th Congress next year.

It recommends that TV coverage be kept closed-circuit for 60 days and radio coverage for 30 days to iron out whatever technical problems arise.

After that, it says, video and audio feeds of the floor sessions of both Houses can be made available free to commercial and public broadcasters, for use live or on videotape in news or public affairs programs.

It suggests that the committees supervising the test subsequently recommend to the Congress whether the system should be made permanent prior to the start of the nation's bicentennial.

It doesn't say who might run the radio operation, although a committee spokesman says it probably would be the National Public Radio system.

The report, which has yet to be acted on by congressional leaders, suggests they consider "inviting" the Public Broadcasting Service to submit proposals for setting up and operating the TV system, at least during the test.

No invitation has come yet, according to Hartford Gunn Jr., head of PBS. He said the question of what his organization will do when and if it gets the invitation will be discussed by PBS' executive committee when it meets Thursday and Friday in Muncie, Ind.

He said PBS, while honored by being considered for the invitation, hasn't taken any position yet on whether it'd like to run Congress' TV eye.

There's a big question, he said, of who'd foot the bill and "I'm sure it can't be funded out of existing public television resources, because we've already got them stretched pretty thin.

"So my guess is that the money would either have to come from Congress itself or from outside foundations and contributions."

We've changed our name, but not our faces.

The Washington Savings Bank is now the Huntington Bank of Washington Court House.

We are a member of a statewide banking system with a new name: Huntington Banks. For this reason, we have adopted our family name. Yes, it is somewhat of a change. But, we think, it is a change for the better. Our family consists of over 80 banking offices throughout Ohio. So now when you leave our friendly surroundings for a city somewhere across the state, a familiar sight may greet you: a Huntington Bank. And a Handy-Bank* may be there. You may obtain cash with our Master Charge Card.

It's like having a home away from home.

Laurie Lisk and Rob Harris

Seniors of the Week

Laurie Lisk, one of the most active seniors at WSHS, is the first featured senior this week. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lisk, 815 Dayton Ave.

Laurie is editor-in-chief of the Sunburst, active in Y-Teens, a member of the National Honor Society, AFS, band, Junior Leadership, and serves as secretary of the senior class. She was also chosen as an alternate to Buckeye Girls State and was featured in "Who's Who in American High School Students."

Her future plans include attending either Brigham Young University of the University of Cincinnati to study interior designing. "It's most essential to be an individual in high school. Make something of yourself, be active, and have a great time. We will not be here forever so take advantage of what we have now, and appreciate our friends and good times. As for me, Lions will be No. 1 forever," Laurie said.

When asked to comment on how he feels about WSHS, he replied, "I feel that my past years of enrollment in Washington city schools, and especially WSHS, have been extremely helpful in giving me a great push in competing in the outside world. Through this attendance, I have learned to communicate and get along with people much easier than I would have been able to otherwise. It has been a very essential part of my life and a great experience."

Robert (Rob) M. Harris, son of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Harris, 652 Warren Ave., is our second featured senior of the week.

Rob's many interests include golfing, swimming, hiking, fishing, and water skiing. He is an active member of the Lettermans club and Hi-Y.

After graduation, Rob plans to attend either Miami University or Ohio State.

Expense reports changed by law

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Congressional candidates no longer must file campaign expense reports under state law, Secretary of State Ted W. Brown said Tuesday.

Congressional candidates must still file the federal reports with the secretary of state.

WSHS homecoming assembly impressive

As a newcomer to WSHS, the homecoming assembly last Friday was one of the most impressive I've ever seen.

The ROTC provided the dignified arch of swords, under the direction of Seaman Jeff Wallace, USN, visiting WSHS from the Naval Academy prep school in Newport, R.I. For the seniors it was a solemn and sad happening as Queen Johnna Upthegrove and Cindy Vaughn, representing all the senior girls, had difficulty holding back tears. I'm sure deep inside even some of the senior boys had the same feeling because for them it was the beginning of the end as the days pass and graduation approaches all too quickly.

This was brought even closer into reality as for the sake of memory the choir sang "Song Sung Blue" and the band played "Yesterday."

One humorous highlight of the entire assembly was the presentation of the "Mr. Touchdown" trophy to Kevin Blair, who received more votes than the other seniors who were competing. Funny, that when his name was called he immediately produced a lengthy acceptance speech which ranged from comments of thanks to his "campaign manager," friends who voted for him, coaches, teachers and others too numerous to mention. If for no other purpose comic relief was provided when it was needed.

Impressive ceremony

Seniors of the Week

Kathleen Frazier is our first featured senior of this week. She resides in New Holland with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Frazier, and her brothers and sisters.

Although Kathy carries a heavy schedule at school, she finds time for numerous activites. She is a member of AFS, president of an FHA mini chapter, and secretary of National Honor Society. In past years she has participated in Future Nurses and Y-Teens. Also, Kathy is a member of St. Colman's Catholic Church. In school, her favorite subjects are Senior Homemaking and contemporary literature.

IN HER spare time, Kathy enjoys swimming, tennis, bicycling, and ice skating. Her advice to underclassmen is to "take advantage of the opportunities offered you and enjoy your high school years to the fullest." She has not yet decided on a college, but would like to further her education.

The main goal of our next featured senior, Phil Skinner, is to major in systems analysis. His favorite subject is government and his favorite class is business law.

Phil is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Skinner, of Bloomingburg. National Honor Society, Future Teachers, Varsity M, and Linguistic Arts are the clubs he has participated in, and he was also chosen to appear in "Who's Who in American High Schools." Phil has been very active in sports, participating in football for two years and basketball and baseball for three years.

Golf and swimming are Phil's hobbies. When asked to comment on his years at Trace, he stated that "students should make the best of it, and have all the fun they can while they are at Trace."

Swimming, trying to play tennis, and bike riding are Diane Conley's favorite hobbies. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Elliot, of Ohio 41-N, and W.R. Conley, of Jackson.

Diane is a member of many clubs and participates in many activities. Future Teachers (president), Y-Teens, the Mitra staff, the Tracer page (co-editor), National Honor Society (treasurer), Marching band for four years, FHA mini chapter (secretary), AFS, and working in the office keep Diane busy. She was a delegate to Buckeye Girls State and has been chosen to appear in this year's edition of Who's Who in American High School Students.

World history with Mr. Dale Creamer was Diane's choice of a favorite subject. Diane hopes to attend either Ohio Dominican College or Miami University and major in special education.

When asked for comments, Diane replied, "As my years at Miami Trace draw to a close, I realize the value of all that I have learned and the value of the friends I have made. I hope to use this knowledge to the fullest in my future."

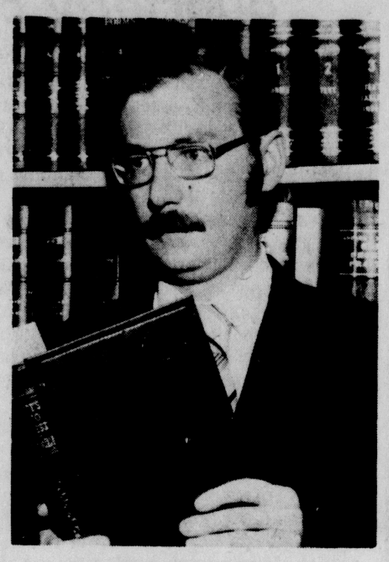
Simpson relocates law practice here

Attorney Robert L. Simpson has relocated his office at 203 N. Fayette St., sharing office space with Harkins and Reckless, attorneys.

A graduate of the University of Cincinnati Law School in 1964, Simpson had practiced law in East Liverpool before coming to Washington C.H. in 1972. He served as assistant county prosecutor until January of 1974.

Although he shares office facilities with Columbus-based attorneys Pat Harkins and Walter Reckless, Simpson said there is no partnership in the arrangement. Formerly associated with Hess and Simpson attorneys, he said he "desired to establish an individual practice."



ROBERT SIMPSON

FOLLOWING graduation from the University of Cincinnati, Simpson served in the U.S. Navy for three years with duty assignments in the Judge Advocate General's office in the Pentagon. He currently holds the rank of lieutenant commander in the Naval Reserve, and is the legal officer of the Naval Air Station in Columbus.

After leaving active duty in the U.S. Navy, he began his private practice in East Liverpool, where he later served as city prosecutor. Simpson continued his academic endeavors, working toward a master of law degree in international law from the University of Miami, Coral Gables, Fla.

The 35-year-old Simpson and his wife, Janette, live at 825 Lincoln Drive. They have four children, Mary Ann, 6, Heather, 5, Bobby Jr., 18 months, and Ian, six months. Also residing with the family at present is foreign exchange student Chavo Lozano, who is a senior at Washington Senior High School.

Man jailed on two charges after scuffle with police

A Washington C.H. man was charged with public intoxication and resisting arrest Tuesday night after officers had been summoned to investigate a complaint of an intoxicated man tearing up his house.

Police said Harry L. Hollar, 40, of 729 Forest St., is lodged in city jail in lieu of $1,000 bond on the two charges.

Police Specialists Larry Hott and Bill Robinson and Patrolman Larry Mongold said they found Hollar sitting outside his home holding an open pocket knife when they responded to the complaint at 1:52 p.m. Tuesday. The police officers attempted to convince him to come along peacefully, but Hollar kept backing away from them, according to the report.

When they attempted to grab him, Hollar started to fight and was sprayed with chemical mace. He continued to fight the officers and they were forced to use their nightsticks to subdue him.

Hollar was taken to Fayette Memorial Hospital where he was treated and released for a head laceration sustained in the scuffle with police officers.

School issues discussed at Union Twp. PTO meet

Ora Burdge, a member of the Fayette County Committee on Quality Education, was the guest speaker at the regular Union Township PTO meeting Tuesday night in the Miami Trace High School auditorium.

Burdge's discussion centered on the upcoming tax and operating levy for the schools on the November ballot.

The principals of the three schools were introduced by PTO president William Martin—Glen Hutchison, of Wilson, Frank Creamer, of Eber, and Mrs. Nancy Harper, of Chaffin.

Mrs. Harper gave a presentation of the open-court reading program, newly-developed in the first, second and third grades, immediately following the meeting.

Entertainment was provided by the seventh and eighth grade Eber School group, "The Singing Hawks," who sang and danced to a variety of popular songs. They were directed by their leader, Mrs. Joanne Rhoads.

In a short business meeting, Mrs. Martin introduced the new officers: first vice president, Mrs. Helen Stilker; second vice president, Mrs. Carolyn Louise DeWeese; secretary, Mrs. Nancy Lovett; treasurer, Mrs. Sharon Dodds; and news reporter, Ms. Janet Sollars.

It was announced that the turkey raffle tickets would be distributed by students in the three schools during November with the drawing at the next meeting, Dec. 10. During the December meeting, to be held at 7:30 p.m. in the Miami Trace High School auditorium, the children from grades two, five and six will present a musical program.

Alleged kidnaper files bid

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — A Winter Park, Fla., man accused of kidnaping says his civil rights are being violated and has asked a court to rescind an order forcing him to turn over evidence.

A new attorney for Clifford J. Kroger, 38, a civil engineer, filed the motion in Hamilton County Common Pleas Court asking Judge William S. Morrissey to rescind an order that would make Kroger provide blood, hair and handwriting samples to the prosecution.

Kroger waived extradition in Florida and was returned here to face charges in the Sept. 23 kidnaping of 4-year-old Allison Mechem, daughter of broadcast executive Charles Mechem.

The little girl was found unharmed in a motel, and the $128,000 ransom was recovered untouched by the kidnapers, police said.

Kroger's attorney, Bernard Gilday, Tuesday contended that Morrissey's order violated Kroger's rights. The order is tantamount to compelling the defendant to be a witness against himself, Gilday said.

Morrissey said Oct. 10 when he issued the order that the U.S. Supreme Court has ruled that blood can be taken from a suspect, forcibly if necessary.

Kroger remains in jail in lieu of $100,000 bond.

Motorist killed

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — David R. Brunelle, 22, of suburban Symmes Township was killed Tuesday night when his car struck a tree off E. Kemper Road near U.S. 27, Hamilton County police said.

Twister office closed

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP) — The Butler County Board of Health has closed its Pisgah temporary office which was set up April 3 to deal with problems left by tornadoes.

Fire checked

An uncovered wire in a switch box caused some sparking and smoke at the New Gerstner-Kinzer Funeral Home, 509 Washington Ave., at 4:29 Tuesday.

Washington C.H. firemen responded to the call, but found the small fire out on arrival. Damage was limited to the wires in the box.

There are 1,600 rockhounds clubs nationwide, and their membership represents only about 7 per cent of the people who take part in the hobby.

Chrysler earnings decline

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp. has reported a thirdquarter profit of $11.2 million in U.S. and Canadian operations and increased sales revenue worldwide. But the firm wound up losing $8 million for the quarter because of overseas losses.

The North American profits were offset by losses totaling $19.2 million overseas, Chrysler said.

The figures announced Tuesday show Chrysler still in the black for the year so far. The nine-month earnings are $21.4 million, an 88 per cent decline from $181 million a year ago, and a per-share drop from $3.42 to 38 cents.

It was only the second quarter in 3½ years that the nation's third largest auto maker reported a loss. General Motors and Ford Motor Co. plan to report their third-quarter results next week.

The loss came despite record revenues for the period. Sales totaled $2.8 billion, up from $2.3 billion for the third quarter of 1973.

Trading of the firm's stock was temporarily halted on the New York Stock Exchange Tuesday. It closed at 10¾, a low for the year.

Chrysler Chairman Lynn Townsend said the firm has been unable to recover $249 in material and labor costs added for each car since January 1972 despite price increases averaging about $1,000 since 1974 models came out a little more than a year ago.

County couple file suit over airport's operation

CHILLICOTHE — A dispute over the operation of the Ross County Airport involving the former operators of the Fayette County Airport has resulted in a law suit filed in Ross County Common Pleas Court.

Bill and Judy Dennis, of Washington C.H., have filed a $79,000 damage suit against Thomas LeCrone, the present operator of the Ross County Airport.

The Fayette county couple at one time were the franchised operators of both the Fayette County and Ross County airports. Deciding to venture into other business enterprises, the couple negotiated with other parties who indicated they wished to purchase the flying schools and privately-owned equipment at each airport.

In Washington C.H., John and Sandy Woodmansee obtained the school and took over the lease as managers of the airport facility.

In Ross County a similar agreement was allegedly confirmed by the prospective buyer, Thomas LeCrone. The Dennis' claim that they and LeCrone jointly announced their proposed arrangement with the Ross County Board of Commissioners, who sanctioned the charge.

With this understanding, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis did not present the commissioners with a bid to lease the airport and operate it for the county. After the franchise was awarded to LeCrone, the only bidder, he refused the terms to which he had allegedly agreed.

Mr. and Mrs. Dennis have asked in the suit that they be awarded $79,000 damages as compensation for the loss of business since they are unable to operate the flying school as long as LeCrone is the airport manager.

Alternatively, they have asked the court to nullify the awarding of the franchise so that they may enter a competitive bid and be considered as candidates to be retained as operators of the airport facility.

They had been providing Ross County with a Federal Aviation Administration and Veterans Administration approved flying school.

City police investigate 696 September incidents

City police during September made 51 criminal arrests, 69 traffic arrests and investigated 696 incidents, according to the monthly report prepared by Washington C.H. Police Chief Rodman Scott.

Of the 696 incidents the most common were accidents, 79; aided persons and disturbances, 55 each; suspicious persons and cars, 50; miscellaneous calls and larcenies, 48 each.

During the month the department arrested 13 persons for disorderly conduct, 11 for petty theft, six for assault, five for intoxication and two apiece in the categories of check fraud, breaking and entering and illegal possession of drugs.

The 51 criminal arrests for September 1974, is a decrease from the 67 arrests for the same period in 1973.

Speeding topped the list of traffic offenses during the month with 16 arrested offenders. Driving under the influence and failure to obey traffic devices resulted in six arrested offenders each, failure to yield right of way and driving while under the influence of alcohol or other drugs of abuse, five each; reckless operation, seven; and two persons were arrested in each of the following categories, driving under license suspension, excessive noise, improper passing, improper registration, insufficient brakes or lights, driving left of center, parking violation and unsafe bumper height.

The 69 arrests for traffic violations during September brings the total to 660 for 1974. In 1973, 70 motorists were arrested during September and the year's total stood at 632.

Property damage resulting in auto mishaps during the month was estimated by Chief Scott at $19,340, bringing the total so far in the year to $155,489. Damage for September 1974 was $21,496.60.

Value of property reported stolen during the month totaled $3,719.70. Value of property recovered was $1,155.53.

Vandalism was responsible for a reported $931.50 damage in September.

Ohio GOP voters urged to turn out

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— President Ford says he doesn't believe it, but "the word is out...(that) Ohio Republicans are not going to vote this year.

"They are turned off by politics," Ford told a Republican fund raising dinner Tuesday night. "They are going to sit this one out."

Urging party members to get out and vote to "send a message" to Congress in support of his anti-inflation program, Ford said for party members to fail to vote would be "akin to setting fire to your house to keep warm."

He plugged Republican Mayor Ralph J. Perk, who is running for the U.S. Senate, calling him a "great team player who deserves to be elected the next U.S. senator from Ohio."

Perk was among party dignitaries on hand to welcome the President. Missing from the group was former Gov. James A. Rhodes, the party's nominee for governor.

Rhodes, who has opposed Ford's 5 per cent surtax proposal, was attending a fundraising affair at Batavia.

Ford disappointed Ohio football fans by saying that because of a conflict with his upcoming trip to the Far East, he won't be able to attend the Michigan-Ohio State game at Columbus Nov. 23.

In another reference to football, he urged Americans to "make politics a spectator sport.

"If we can get 85,000 people out on Saturday to watch Ohio State win, why can't we get five million Buckeyes to come out on Nov. 5 to help America win?" he asked.

About 300 persons paid $500 a plate to attend the dinner at the Sheraton-Cleveland Hotel.

Ford left immediately afterward to return to Washington.

GORDY COLEMAN

Coleman addresses local Rotarians

By LARRY WATTS
Record-Herald Sports Editor

"Baseball is a great game of second-guessing," remarked Gordy Coleman, a former first baseman with the Cincinnati Reds. Coleman, who is presently head of the Reds' speakers' bureau, was the guest speaker at the Rotary luncheon, Tuesday afternoon.

After coming up through the Cleveland baseball system, Coleman joined the Reds in 1959 and played through the 1967 season. He was a member of the 1961 National League pennant winners.

"The game of baseball is changing and we found out when we moved to Riverfront Stadium that a good team requires pitching, speed and defense," Coleman said. "While in Crosley Field, we were looking for the home run hitter because of the short fences. However, the move to Riverfront changed our philosophy."

"The new artificial surfaces have helped the fielders," remarked Coleman, who was noted more for the long ball than for his field ability. "Now the ball takes a truer bounce. It (the field) makes bad fielders average and good fielders better."

Coleman also noted that pitching staffs have taken a considerable change in the major leagues. Each member of the pitching staff is assigned to do special things and starting pitchers are not expected to more than five or six innings.

"Guys who pitch more are the ones who have come up with those freak pitches, such as the screwball, forkball and knuckleball," related the former first baseman. "The guys with fast balls, such as Clay Carroll can not come out of the bullpen every day and reach back for that particular pitch."

Much of the second-guessing in baseball involves defensive changes. Many teams, such as the Reds, try to pull some of their strong hitters and insert defensive players to protect the lead in the later innings.

Coleman also expressed his views on international expansion and the designated hitter in the National League. He could forsee neither one in the immediate future.

Coleman said the dollar differences between the countries involved would be a problem. Several of the box seats in other countries would sell for one dollar or less.

As far as the designated hitter is concerned, he pointed out that the American League was using it to draw attendance because clubs lagged so far behind the National League. With a player just in the lineup to hit, Coleman said the people are not seeing the complete athlete.

Turning to the Reds, Coleman spent a great deal of his time talking about last season's disappointing second place finish and what the future holds for Cincinnati. Some changes are already being planned by President Bob Howsam.

"We do not really need that much," Coleman noted. "The need of a third baseman and more pitching seem to be high on our list."

"Good pitching is always tough to find," he cited. "Gary Nolan, who is recovering from arm trouble and presently pitching in the Florida Instructional League, remains an open book. Right now, he is not having any troubles pitching in Florida. We also have some fine young pitching talent in the system."

Coleman said he doubted if first baseman Tony Perez would be traded. Should the trade occur, catcher Johnny Bench would probably lead the league in intentional walks, since pitchers would try to pitch around him. With Perez in the lineup, opposing pitchers can not afford to pitch around Bench.

"Last season, we left a lot of runners on base," added Coleman. "It seems as though we left most of our runners on base against Los Angeles."

"The Dodgers executed well during the season, but they fell flat during the World Series," he said. "Their defense was not the best in the league and they got beat a couple of series' games because of it. Two of the most crucial plays in the series were when Bill Buckner led off the inning with a double and was thrown out trying to stretch it into a triple; and Mike Marshall giving up the homer to Joe Rudi after he failed to take any warm-up pitches."

"Oakland has an outstanding pitching staff," he added. Jim Hunter and Ken Holtzman are exceptional and Rollie Fingers is great coming out in relief."

"Hitters make their living hitting the pitcher's mistakes. When a pitcher is throwing strong, he usually makes one mistake to a batter's every four trips to the plate. A good hitter will take advantage of that one mistake, while a mediocre hitter can not."

Visiting guests were Dan Long with Jack Persinger, Bob McArthur with Don Thompson, student guest Mark Spears from Miami Trace and Rotary foreign exchange student Salvador Lozanog. Visiting Rotarians included Merrill Kaufman and Art Dicks. Program chairman was Bob Simpson.

Unemployment tax cut slated

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The administrator of the Ohio Bureau of unemployment, services says unemployment compensation taxes on Ohio employers will be reduced Jan. 1.

William E. Garnes said the tax will drop two-tenths per cent. The lower tax rate results from the formula in state law, which bases the tax on the amount of money in the Unemployment Compensation Trust Fund.

Garnes said there is more than $783 million in the trust fund.

Business news

BancOhio Corp. increases quarterly cash dividend

The board of directors of BancOhio Corp. recently declared a quarterly cash dividend of 27½ cents per common share and a year-end extra cash dividend of five cents per share, payable Dec. 15, 1974 to shareholders of record Nov. 22, 1974.

These payments, plus the 75 cents paid previously, will make total cash dividends $1.07½ per common share for 1974, a 12 per cent increase over cash dividends paid in the previous year. The payment of 27½ cents as a regular quarterly dividend anticipates a 10 per cent increase in the annual cash dividend rate.

The directors determined that the increased cash dividend was reasonable in view of the significant improvement in the corporation's earnings during the current year. This action attests to the desire of the corporation's management to provide the greatest possible benefits to its shareholders from the improved operating results. BancOhio Corporation has paid regular cash dividends since its inception in 1929.

Philip F. Searle, president and chief executive officer, stated that "present conditions in the financial markets are such that an increase in the cash distribution to shareholders is more appropriate than continuation of the payment of a modest stock dividend as in each of the past eight years. Investors are placing greater emphasis on current yield, and the increase in the regular cash dividend as well as the year-end dividend is in line with investor preference in today's economic climate."

The First National Bank of Washington C. H. is affiliated with BancOhio Corp.

Urge sharing of credits

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — A plan to refuse corporations 7 per cent investment tax credits unless they shared new capital with workers was advanced to President Ford Tuesday as a new weapon in the war against inflation, Mayor Ralph Perk said.

Perk said he suggested the measure to Ford on the ride from Cleveland Hopkins Airport downtown, where Ford addressed a $500-a-plate Republican fund raiser.

Rains fall in Southwest

By The Associated Press

Thunderstorms were scattered across much of the Southwest today and rain spotted other sections of the nation.

The National Weather Service said a high flash flood potential existed in Arizona. The rain extended from Southern California into several Plains states.

Showers and thunderstorms also stretched from the Texas Panhandle into northeast Kansas.

In El Paso, Tex., hail the size of small oranges — some of it 3¼ inches in diameter — damaged several homes and automobiles. No injuries were reported.

Parts of New York and the Southeast, including Florida, also were soaked by scattered storms.

Skies were cloudy over the Great Lakes region and New England. But the rest of the nation generally had clear skies.

White-collar crime probed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal prosecutors say they're digging into more white-collar crimes than ever in support of a Justice Department crackdown on corruption in corporate boardrooms and public offices.

"I think everybody has the push on and it's high time," said a Southern prosecutor whose comments were echoed by a score of other U.S. attorneys interviewed about the department's recent emphasis on investigating fraud, embezzlement, political kickbacks and similar crimes. Several asked not to be identified by name.

The prosecutors said they're anxious for the drive to continue although the complex and time-consuming investigations strain their limited manpower. And some are upset with what they consider light treatment of white-collar criminals by judges and juries.

The U.S. attorneys are pressing Congress and the Ford administration for more money to hire more lawyers for those investigations and other duties in civil and criminal cases.

Meantime, many prosecutors say they're prodding state and local authorities to take over the prosecution of such routine cases as drug violations and auto thefts to free more of their own time for corruption probes.

The campaign was born out of the kickback investigation of former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew and the Watergate scandals which shook public confidence in government and especially in the Justice Department.

As part of a bid to regain public support for the department, Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe has promised fair prosecution of the rich and poor alike and urged harsh prison sentences for white-collar crooks.

Some prosecutors said the Agnew and Watergate cases gave them the public support they needed to indict prominent individuals without suffering from accusations that their investigations were politically motivated.

"The Agnew case indicated two things to us — it's possible to crack these cases, and the public damn well wants us to," said Dean C. Smith, U.S. attorney in Spokane, Wash.

The prosecutors were unanimous in appealing for more money to hire more lawyers to handle investigations of whitecollar crime.

"We can't possibly prosecute every crime committed, but right now the emphasis is on white-collar crime," said one U.S. attorney. "I'm finding an increasing determination to defer to local prosecutors on a number of cases so we can go into the white-collar cases."

Despite the department emphasis, some prosecutors are upset that judges continue to treat white-collar criminals leniently.

"We spend $100,000 of the taxpayers' money to build a case and then the guy gets concurrent sentences of three months in prison. I'm not happy with that," complained one prosecutor.

Crash kills 7 persons

ROCKMART, Ga. (AP) — A work train backed into a loaded school bus at a crossing today, killing at least seven children, authorities reported.

Police said there were about 30 children, mostly 10 to 14 years old, aboard the bus. Besides the dead, most of the others on the bus were injured, some seriously.

Witnesses said the repair train had been called to the scene of a derailment during the night and was backing up along the tracks when it hit the bus.

The train dragged the crumpled bus several hundred feet, police said.

When the train came to a halt, the caboose was derailed and fell on top of the overturned bus.

The Polk County coroner first reported that the bus driver, Billy Kellett, had been killed. But police later said he was hospitalized in critical condition.

A spokesman for Southern Railway in Washington said the train was moving about eight miles per hour.

Police investigating stolen auto report

An auto theft, a larceny and an incident of vandalism was reported by Washington C. H. police today. The Fayette County Sheriff's Department investigated a personal injury and a burglary.

While Wanda Crum was talking on her telephone at 3:59 p.m. Tuesday, at her 2011 Heritage Court residence, she thought she heard what sounded like her car being started and driven away. Unfortunately, she was right.

Washington C. H. police, who are searching for the stolen auto, reported that the keys had been in it at the time of the theft.

A brown coat with a white collar valued at $23 was taken from Debbie Lawrence's unlocked car sometime between 2:30 p.m. and 4 p.m. Tuesday, while it was parked in the municipal parking lot on S. Fayette Street, police reported. Miss Lawrence resides at 3516 U.S. 22-E and anyone having information concerning the stolen coat can contact her and the police.

A 24 by 30 inch glass window was broken at the Roy Benson residence, 1216 E. Paint St., at 10 a.m. Tuesday, police reported. The window was valued at $15.

The Lester H. Smith residence in Jeffersonville was burglarized sometime between 6:45 p.m. and 9:45 p.m. Tuesday, the Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported. Fifty dollars in cash was stolen in the burglary.

Charles Williams Jr., 30, New Holland, sustained a broken and lacerated nose and a lacerated right arm, in an accident at Armco, U.S. 35, at 5:15 a.m. Wednesday.

Sheriff's deputies explained Williams was walking through a glass door when it broke causing him to lose his balance and fall, hitting his face on the metal brace bar. He was taken to Fayette Memorial Hospital and treated for the injury.

Four mishaps checked here

An area youth was cited by Washington C. H. police for reckless operation, when he became involved in an accident at 8:36 p.m. Tuesday.

Kevin A. Pfeiffer, 16, of 717 Carolyn Rd., told police his foot slipped off the brake pedal and hit the gas while he was turning left off McLean Street, onto Lindberg Avenue. He lost control of his car and collided with a tree on the property of Roger Whitley, 623 Park Drive. He was unhurt in the mishap.

Police reported a second accident and the Fayette County Sheriff's Department investigated two accidents, one Tuesday and one Wednesday morning.

In her effort to watch for school children crossing the street, the car Nona C. Knisley, 68, Hickory Lane, was driving sideswiped a parked car belonging to Kenneth Horney, 1231 Washington Ave.

Police reported the accident, which occurred on High Street, near the Warren Street intersection, at 12:38 p.m. Tuesday.

The driver's door of a car belonging to Larry Zugg, Rt. 5, was severely damaged by a hit-skip driver, sometime between midnight and 2 a.m. Sunday, the Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported.

Zugg's auto had been parked at Club 22, CCC-Highway-W when the hit-skip incident occurred.

The brakes on a semi driven by John D. Stewart Jr., 32, Louisville, Ky., gave away and caused the truck's trailer portion to roll into the front of a semi driven by Charles L. Heller, 34, Perryville, at 7 a.m. Wednesday, while the big trucks were parked at Garner's Union 76 station, I-71 and U.S. 35 and both driver's were asleep within them.

Sheriff's deputies reported the Heller truck was moderately damaged and the Stewart truck slightly damaged. The trailer on the Stewart truck which struck the front of the Heller truck was owned by John F. Peake, New Albany, Ind.

No one was injured.

Glenn endorses Dumford

COLUMBUS — U.S. Senate candidate John H. Glenn today endorsed the candidacy of Laurence A. (Bucky) Dumford, of Washington C.H., for the Ohio House of Representatives from the 77th District.

"If we are to provide responsive government at the local levels it will be by electing candidates to office like Bucky Dumford," Glenn said in a statement issued from his Columbus campaign headquarters.

"AS A commissioner of Fayette County for 12 years he proved himself a capable servant of the public. His interests — public school financing and tax revision — are of vital concern to the people of the 77th District.

"He strongly stresses the importance of local government, which is refreshing in an age of increasingly centralization and depersonalization of government," Glenn added.

Dumford, a local businessmen reared in Fayette County, is a graduate of Ohio State University. For 12 years he served on the Fayette County Board of Commissioners and he is now in his second year as a member of the Ohio Gov. John Gilligan's Local Government Services Commission.

The 45-year-old Dumford was an unsuccessful candidate for the 77th District seat in the 1970 election.

Deserters could quit, escape cost

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— Military deserters processed under President Ford's clemency offer could quit the public service jobs they agree to work and would likely face no criminal action, a military spokesman said Tuesday.

U.S. Marine Corps Lt. Dale Baird, public affairs officer for the President, said the only thing binding a deserter to the alternate service is "his word of good faith."

Baird, information officer at the nation's only processing center for war resisters, said such persons would not be subject to prosecution.

"We only have his word—his good faith pledge—that he will stay at the job for the time he's suppose to serve," Baird said.

"If we get thousands who quit their jobs, something will have to be done," he said.

Baird said less than one-third of the 12,000 deserters eligible for the conditional amnesty have indicated an interest in accepting the President's offer.

He said more than 50 deserters a day are being processed at the Joint Processing Center at Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Ind.

"We've had 3,899 calls," he said, but only 1,327 have surrendered to authorities.

"I look for the big push to come in January. A lot of people in Canada are holding off" to see the treatment given those who accept amnesty, Baird said.

Ex-gridder sets visit with Ford

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Silas McGee, a retired longshoreman, says he is going in style when he attends his high school football team's reunion at the fancy home of an old teammate.

President Ford's engraved invitation requests his company at 11 a.m., Nov. 28, at the White House.

"First class, first class. No other way," says McGee. "When I get to the White House, I'll be dressed as the ambassador from Timbuktu. Hellllooo! Here I am. What an unanticipated pleasure!"

McGee was a halfback and end on a team at South High School on which Ford played center.

McGee said everyone called the President "Junie because he was Gerald Ford, Junior."

Over 100 attend

Progressive school conducts open house

The Fayette County Progressive School conducted an open house Tuesday night at its new facility in the Sunnyside Elementary School and it was obvious who enjoyed it most.

The children from the school's preschool, primary, intermediate and junior classes "did their own thing" for the over 100 people attending with song and dance.

The students provided entertainment with a variety of songs they had learned and culminated the program with a little "hokey-pokey" before returning to their classrooms to exhibit their handiwork to the public.

Carl Whitaker, administrator at the school for the last three years, spoke on the need to approve the .65-mill levy, being proposed for additional operating costs.

IN 1967, the state legislature passed the 169 Act and created boards of mental retardation. Fayette County initiated a program in our county at that time in the First Presbyterian Church with only eight children.

"Now the school has 45 students enrolled and has moved to the Sunnyside building where we think we are using it to our best advantage," Whitaker said.

The proposed levy increases the present budget of $61,000 to $63,000. According to Whitaker, the proposed levy can be justified by the increased expenses in moving to the larger building from the Washington Junior High School building, increased enrollment, staff and operating costs due to inflation.

Whitaker said the new levy would be on a five-year projection and would also include an adult activities center with the school next fall. Under the planned adult program, mentally handicapped adults would be paid a certain amount of money to do a menial job such as running paper through a shredder, or as Whitaker said — "all kinds of jobs industry does not want to fool with." The program would find the adults a job they could do while providing them with self-satisfaction at the same time, he added.

"There are possibly 20-30 young adults at home in the county not doing anything right now," Whitaker said, stating the amount was based on a survey conducted last year.

Now, the fate of the progressive school and the adult program rests with voters in the upcoming November election.

FOLLOWING the open house, the Fayette County Board of Mental Retardation held its monthly meeting. Members received a report on the dissemination of information concerning the proposed .65 mill operating levy which will appear on the November ballot. The board is diligently attempting to inform voters of the need for the tax money.

The board authorized Carl Whitaker, school administrator, to investigate the cost of two nursery tables and 12 chairs for the pre-school class. He was asked to check prices on a portable dishwasher for the kitchen.

The board discussed the Miami Trace tax issues which will also appear on the ballot. It voted its support of both the bond issue and the additional operating levy.

There will be no classes at the Fayette County Progressive school Friday, Nov. 1. Teachers will be attending a meeting of the Professional Association for the Retarded to be held in Dayton.

Clay Wade bridge open

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The Clay Wade Bailey Bridge over the Ohio River between Cincinnati and Covington, Ky., was to be reopened at 1 p.m. today, eight years after it was closed.

U.S. 25, 42 and 127 will be rerouted over the span, which is named for a Frankfort, Ky., newsman.

The old bridge, called the C&O, was closed to traffic in 1968 following an inspection of all Ohio River spans brought on by the Silver Bridge collapse.

The railroad portion of the bridge remained in service and highway traffic was rerouted over Interstate 75.

The reouting left Cincinnati and Covington with daily traffic backups on the interstate during rush hours.

The new span will have three lanes.

MONSTER'S CHAMBER — If you like to get scared, the haunted house sponsored by the Wilmington Jaycees will give you much more than your dollar admission's worth. The house, located at 352 Prarie Avenue (same location as last year), is an annual project of the Jaycees. It's a good deal too. Not only is it well worth the $1 admission, but the money goes to a worthy cause since the Jaycees are trying to raise $8,000 in order to qualify for federal funding which will add $30,000 to the $8,000 sum enabling them to construct a new youth center in Clinton County. The house can be toured from 7:30 until 11:30 p.m. through Oct. 31. (Mark Thellmann photo)

New form of art founded?

BY MARK THELLMANN

A 31-year-old Jeffersonville man may have founded a new form of art, "chain-saw furniture."

You really can't blame him though. Virgil Barker has been cutting firewood for the past 10 years and that can become rather boring after awhile, so to make it more interesting, Barker started playing around with his chain saw, cutting chairs and benches out of logs.

He got his brother Marvin, who is 26, interested also and now his family and friends (he has never sold any of his work to anyone) have furniture around the home and yard as buccolic as can be.

IT'S QUITE attractive too. Barker came into the Record-Herald last week and showed off some of his projects. The most interesting was a ball enclosed in a wooden frame the shape of a box. The ball could be turned inside the box frame, for it was unattached; but could not be removed, as it was too big — it was trapped inside the frame!

Barker explained the ball and box was cut from just one solid piece of wood! It was like viewing one of those pennies inside the glass jug, Ottice Stookey is always giving out, or the well-known ship within a bottle which everyone has seen at one time or another.

Barker is also a painter during the summer months and although it is not known how long he has been doing this, it'll be interesting to see what happens when he gets bored and starts "creative house painting."

Aging to become major problem

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — "Aging, that is growing old, is a problem in our society," an Ohio State University professor of psychology said Tuesday.

By the year 2000, one person out of six in the United States in the group of "older American" said Dr. Dorthy W. Jackson.

More people are living longer, Dr. Jackson said. As a result, the lives of the aged living now are different that those of the past century. The aged and their families must be taught to cope with the resulting differences and problems, she added.

The most significant change is in the marriage relationship, Dr. Jackson said. Couples now spend more years together without children and must learn to re-establish a husband-wife relationship.

Old folks must learn to cope with the physical changes of aging, the changes in role from parent to grandparent, the feeling of a loss of personal power and identity, the fear of loneliness following loss of a mate, the changing world and lifestyles around them, and the fear of senility and the fear of dying, Dr. Jackson said.

Society can cope with these problems, Dr. Jackson said, but only individual personal awareness will change the negative attitudes and myths about the over-65 generation and the process of growing old.

Speaking to a group of women attending the Fourth Annual Women's Day at Ohio State University's Fawcett Center For Tomorrow, Dr. Jackson asked each of them to think about their attitudes towards their aged parents or grandparents.

Dr. Jackson said most Americans picture old folks as sickly, accident-prone and unable to live on their own. She said this negative picture serves as a self-fulfilling prophecy in too many cases.

Conversely, many Americans revere the "golden age myth" which says the "best is yet to be" late in life, Dr. Jackson said.

In reality, neither picture is true, Dr. Jackson stressed. Americans must establish a realistic picture of being old and realize that there are more options available to the aged and their families than those defined by tradition and past relations.

Once considered too dry to support extensive agriculture, Nebraska in fact lies over great groundwater reserves, National Geographic says. At least 40,000 shallow wells and many storage reservoirs irrigate more than 5,000,000 acres.

Ohio Perspective

Ohio Democrats hoping for big turnout

By TOM DIEMER
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — If they get big turnouts in traditionally strong Democratic areas, party strategists believe 1974 will be a big year for Democrats in Ohio.

"Our whole thing is to identify our strength and deliver that strength on election day," said Eugene "Pete" O'Grady, campaign manager for Gov. John J. Gilligan.

The major Democratic strongholds are not difficult to identify. They are the highly-unionized, northern industrial areas — Toledo in the northwest and most of the northeastern corner of the state.

The Democratic strategy is simple — bring out the voters in droves in these districts and work hard to win votes in what they consider to be safe independent areas.

But, getting out the vote may prove a formidable task in a year marked by widespread voter disillusionment and apathy. Some political analysts think the Watergate scandal will hurt both parties, with large numbers of voters staying home Nov. 5.

Even with a national hero as an overwhelming favorite in the U.S. Senate race and with an incumbent governor, Democratic insiders are hesitant to predict any landslide.

Not so O'Grady, a former Democratic state chairman. Sitting in his cluttered campaign office in downtown Columbus, O'Grady said flatly: "I'll predict that the Democratic ticket will be elected from top to bottom."

That will take some doing, most observers figure.

Even assuming victories for all Democratic incumbents, state Rep. Richard Celeste has a tough fight with incumbent Lt. Gov. John W. Brown and state Sen. Tony P. Hall appears to be a decided underdog against Secretary of State Ted W. Brown.

O'Grady is encouraged by an independent poll. During the last week of September it showed John Glenn leading Republican Ralph Perk by an astronomical 50 points in the Senate race and Gilligan ahead of former Gov. James A. Rhodes by 11 points. The poll had 16 per cent of the vote undecided in the gubernatorial contest.

A Republican poll reportedly showed Rhodes to be only a few points behind.

O'Grady thinks Gilligan will do better in his home town of Cincinnati after losing Hamilton County in 1970 and claims there is a "surprising interest in Democrats this year in traditionally-Republican small counties.

"Within the last three weeks, everything has come together," O'Grady said in mid-October.

Gilligan's 53 per cent plus victory in 1970 over former state Auditor Roger Cloud pinpointed the Democratic strongholds. Gilligan captured only 34 counties to Cloud's 54, but he piled up big margins in densely populated areas like Lucas, Cuyahoga, Summit and Mahoning counties, reflecting an edge for Democrats in registered voters in the state.

Gilligan defeated Cloud in all of the counties in the northeastern corner and did well along Ohio's eastern border in Columbiana and Jefferson and on southward to Belmont and Monroe counties.

Then, there is little Pike County surrounded by generally GOP areas in south-central Ohio. Pike gave Gilligan a 1,163-vote margin out of fewer than 1,700 votes cast in 1970. Party officials point out the county has been voting Democratic since Civil War days.

Democratic strength in the state was badly shaken by Sen. George McGovern's ill-fated 1972 presidential campaign.

Only Lucas and Athens counties gave McGovern the edge, the latter due largely to the student vote at Ohio University. Even Youngstown, rock-ribbed Democratic country, went for former President Nixon by 1,700 votes.

Democratic campaign officials do not appear worried that Gilligan will lose any traditionally-safe areas this year. The governor's people have not had the problems that McGovern's staff had in working with local party officials.

Nor are internal problems on the local level expected to harm the statewide ticket. Although Democratic factionalism has contributed to two election victories for GOP Mayor Ralph J. Perk in Cleveland, Gilligan won Cuyahoga County by 67 per cent four years ago.

"We expect him to repeat that margin of victory," said one state party official.

There is no apparent complacency in the Democratic camp, due in part to fears over a low turnout and published reports that Rhodes is gaining ground.

"It all depends on the turnout," a party spokesman said.

Food jumps in price across Ohio

CHICAGO (AP) — Food prices jumped 2 per cent in Cleveland during September and 1.3 per cent in Cincinnati, the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics has reported.

The bureau said the food price index hit 165.9 in Cleveland and 167.2 in Cincinnati. That means that $100 worth of food bought in 1967, the base period, now would cost $165.90 in Cleveland and $167.20 in Cincinnati.

Increases for the year were 11.3 per cent in Cincinnati and 10.5 per cent in Cleveland.

The bureau said dairy products were the only foods showing a price decline during the month, dropping 0.2 per cent in Cincinnati and 0.7 per cent in Cleveland. But even with the drops, the bureau said, dairy product prices in Cincinnati were 19.2 per cent above a year ago and were 16.6 per cent above the price last year in Cleveland.

Meat, poultry and fish prices showed an increase from a month ago, but a drop from a year ago, the bureau said.

Cleveland showed a 3.4 per cent increase last month, but a 11.8 per cent drop from last year, while Cincinnati showed a 2.1 per cent increase during the month but a 8.5 per cent drop from prices a year ago.

Cincinnati and Cleveland were the only two Ohio cities for which figures were available.

Top offensive, defensive units to clash

Panthers seek Homecoming victory

By LARRY WATTS
Record-Herald Sports Editor

Last week, Miami Trace sealed the coffin on Wilmington's final chances in the South Central Ohio League race. This week, the Panthers have the opportunity to do the same thing to Greenfield when the Tigers visit for the Panthers' annual Homecoming celebration.

Confronting each other will be the league's most potent offensive unit and the stingiest defense. In three SCOL games, the Panthers have produced a total of 100 points on the scoreboard. All five of the Tigers' victories, three of which have been in the league, have been shutouts.

In climbing to a 5-2 season record and 2-1 mark in league play Panther coach Fred Zechman is finding more versatility in his offensive unit. In addition to the always dangerous presence of fullback Jeff Sagar and quarterback Tom Riley, the running of halfback Rex Coe and the receiving of Jay Mossbarger and Jeff Smithson has also helped open up the attack.

Sagar and Riley have been the main thrusts in the Panthers' offense throughout the season. Sagar has now collected 737 yards in 117 carries for a 6.3 average per carry and he has also scored 74 points. On the ground Riley has picked up 409 yards in 88 carries; and through the air, he has connected on 32 of 60 passes for 412 yards.

In the last two games, Coe has been proving himself a worthy replacement for the damaging loss of senior Tom Pfaff from the lineup. In the 38-13 win over Wilmington, Coe carried the ball 18 times for 75 yards and scored 10 points.

Both Mossbarger and Smithson have been coming through with some key pass receptions, which have helped boost Riley into the league lead in passing. Mossbarger caught his first touchdown of the season last week and now has 18 points for the year. Smithson made two clutch third down receptions for 31 yards against the Hurricanes.

"Their defense is very physical," replied Zechman. "This is the only defense we will be facing that has a 5-3 formation. Since we do not usually encounter this type of defense, it gives us some offensive blocking adjustments. We have to take away some of our standard offensive plays and insert some new ones for this game."

"Our kids know the challenge is there and they just have to respond to Greenfield's defense," Zechman continued. "With five shutouts, the Tigers have to be rated as the best overall defensive unit in the league."

If Zechman considers Greenfield's defense as tops in the league, then the Panthers must be rated very close to them. In their three league games, the Panthers' have yielded an average of 129 total yards to the opponents.

"Although Wilmington's Jackie Watson gained 143 yards against us last week, I thought that was the best we have contained him in his four years," Zechman pointed out. "He only had a couple of big gains, which can be expected of him."

Even though Greenfield has been diversifying its offense more in recent games, the center of the attack is still tailback Gary Barr. Barr has rambled for 784 yards in 192 carries this season. He is averaging 112 yards in nearly 28 carries per game.

In recent games, Henry Craig and John Purdin have been seeing more action in carrying the ball. This has helped take a lot of the pressure off of Barr.

"With Kevin Kensinger at quarterback, the Tigers have a good play action in the passing game," Zechman indicated. "Overall, I feel their offense is very balanced and possess a lot of power."

Both defenses will be yielding nearly the same amount of weight. Miami Trace's offense will have an eight-pound advantage per player over the Tigers' defense. Greenfield's offense carries a seven-pound advantage on the Panthers' defense.

Zechman and his staff found it very difficult to select defensive players of the week from the Wilmington game. Six players finished with 13 or more defensive points in the game. Heading the list were Mossbarger and Greg Cobb with 26 points each. Ron Warnock had 22 points, Rick Saunders came through with 15, Riley had 14 and freshman Art Schlichter had 13.

Mossbarger made five individual tackles, one of which was behind the line of scrimmage. He also had three assists and was credited with five pass rushes.

Cobb, who is being selected player of the week for the fourth time, totaled six individual tackles, one of which was behind the line of scrimmage. He also had nine assists and two pass rushes.

Riley and Sagar were chosen as co-offensive players of the week. It was the fourth time for Sagar and Riley's third time.

In addition to his rushing yardage of 117 yards in 19 carries and three touchdowns, Sagar was also credited with an outstanding blocking game. Riley came through with some pass plays and runs in crucial third down situations.

The best hits of the week were credited to Ron Warnock on defense and Smithson on offense. Warnock received his honor when he sacked Wilmington quarterback Duane Earley. Smithson delivered a crackback block on Wilmington linebacker Noel Van Pelt.

Since Greenfield is a 3-1 in the SCOL and 5-2 overall, Zechman considers this a must game for the Panthers. After Friday night, one of the teams will no longer be in competition.

Easy win predicted for OSU

HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "We expect another team to try and beat us, but we're not going to let it happen."

So says Ohio State's Woody Hayes as the 6-0 Buckeyes get ready to defend their No. 1 ranking against 1-5 Northwestern.

"Only way to avoid it is preparation," adds Hayes. "We'll be ready. We do want to keep all four backs running."

The four main backs are tailback Archie Griffin, who's averaging 6.9 yards a carry, quarterback Cornelius Greene at 6.3, fullback Champ Henson at 5.0 and wingback Brian Baschnagel at an astonishing 13.1. Those averages have remained pretty much the same for the last few weeks and Hayes, believe it or not, isn't happy about it.

"We've had offensive consistency around 73 per cent for three straight weeks," he said. "The reason we're not getting better is using other players so much."

The number will stay around the 73 per cent level again as the Buckeyes use a lot of players in beating Northwestern ... 56-7.

Last week's score was 45 right, 17 wrong and two ties for .726, bringing the season's scoreboard to 279-108-12—.721. All three Upset Specials went down the drain, however, although West Virginia came within seconds of beating Miami, Fla., before losing by a point.

Oklahoma 56, Kansas State 7: If that's a good score for Ohio State, why not for Oklahoma?

Michigan 35, Minnesota 14: For the Little Brown Jug Minnesota gets jugged and mugged.

Alabama 42, Texas Christian 7: TCU won't stop 'Bama, even though the Horned Frogs have won all three previous meetings with the Tide.

Auburn 20, Florida State 7: Auburn has never lost to FSU and there's no reason to start now.

Southern California 34, Oregon State 7: USC's passing game might not be as good as it should be, but the ground game, led by Anthony Davis, is no problem.

Notre Dame 14, Miami, Fla. 7: Hurricanes come on strong to avenge last year's 44-0 shellacking, but not strong enough.

Upset Special of the Week ... Baylor 21, Texas A&M 20. You know the times are changin' when the winner of this one is still unbeaten in Southwest Conference play.

Second Upset Special ... Georgia Tech 24, Tulane 21: Yellow Jackets are unbeaten at home since the Notre Dame opener.

Third Upset Special ... Princeton 24, Penn 21: A prize to anyone who can spell Snickenberger and Bellizeare.

Bonus Upset Special ... Indiana 20, Wisconsin 15. Indiana lost by 40 to Ohio State, Wisconsin lost by 45, which means the Hoosiers are five points better. Doesn't it?

Nebraska 28, Oklahoma State 17: Cornhuskers were fit to be tied last year; this time, they're Humming ... with Dave Humm.

Penn State 31, West Virginia 14: Lions always wins this one ... or does it just seem that way?

Texas Tech 24, Southern Methodist 17: Red Raiders can't afford another SWC setback.

Florida 27, Duke 14: Unless the Gators decide to look ahead to Auburn.

Texas 35, Rice 7: Officials won't lose this one for the Owls.

Arizona State 41, New Mexico 14: Last year it was 67-24.

Maryland 24, North Carolina State 22: This game and next week's meeting with Penn State will prove how good the Terps really are.

Arizona 35, Brigham Young 28: Wildcats are back in their league — the Western Athletic Conference — after losing their unbeaten record to Texas Tech of the Southwest Conference.

Miami of Ohio 35, Toledo 17: Redskins have allowed only 30 points all season.

Georgia 24, Kentucky 21: But it could go the other way ... and isn't that a great line?

Temple 28, Delaware 14: Good University Division team beats good College Division team ... which should really be in the University Division.

Rookie Drew exploding in NBA

By The Associated Press

Rookie John Drew says he's shocked to be in the pro basketball ranks, which is exactly the way he's making some other people feel.

Drew poured in 41 points to lead the Atlanta Hawks to a 125-92 rout of the Philadelphia 76ers Tuesday night. He is now averaging 32.3 points per game after three National Basketball Association outings.

"Drew's having a lot of fun," said Atlanta Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons. "Maybe one day he'll wake up and realize he's in the NBA and get nervous. But I don't really think that's going to happen .... He's a great offensive player, and he's getting better on defense every day."

Drew, meanwhile, says he's plenty nervous.

"I'm still shocked to be up here," said Drew. "I've read about people like Tom Van Arsdale and Billy Cunningham, and now I'm playing against them. I've been nervous all day."

Atlanta jumped out to a 14-2 lead over Houston and never looked back. Dwight Jones added 24 points and Lou Hudson 23 for the Hawks. Clyde Lee led Atlanta rebounders with 21 while Drew, who is barely 20 years old, had 18.

Elsewhere in the NBA, the New York Knicks beat the Houston Rockets 110-100, the Buffalo Braves silenced the New Orleans Jazz 134-118, the Milwaukee Bucks nipped the Chicago Bulls 92-90, the Washington Bullets got past the Kansas City-Omaha Kings 123-121 and the Portland Trail Blazers edged the Golden State Warriors 107-106.

In the American Basketball Association, the San Diego Q's edged the Memphis Sounds 109-106 and the Spirits of St. Louis beat the Virginia Squires 118-112.

The Milwaukee Bucks erased a four-point deficit in the final 38 seconds to beat the Bulls. Bob Dandridge scored a pair of baskets to tie the score, then Lucius Allen stole the ball and sank a pair of free throws with two second left for the victory.

Bob McAdoo scored 33 points and grabbed 22 rebounds to pace Buffalo past the winless New Orleans Jazz.

Wes Unseld's basket with 13 seconds gave the Bullets their victory after Nate Archibald had tied the score with a basket with 32 seconds to go. The Kings had a last chance to tie, but Jimmy Walker missed in the closing seconds. Elvin Hayes had 35 points for the Bullets, 22 of them in the first half.

Rams trade Hadl to Packers

The National Football League played musical chairs — with quarterbacks.

By the time the game was over, four clubs had new quarterbacks.

The Los Angeles Rams had the biggest surprise Tuesday, final day for interclub trading — and got the biggest reward, five draft choices from the Green Bay Packers for John Hadl.

That's right, the Rams traded away John Hadl, the quarterback who made all pro after leading them to a 12-2 record last year. Hadl couldn't get the Los Angeles offense to move this year.

It meant that James Harris' promotion to starter is permanent. The 27-year-old black quarterback threw three touchdown passes last Sunday and got the Los Angeles offense cracking for the first time in 1974.

In the other deals involving quarterbacks, Craig Morton, the disenchanted Dallas Cowboy backup man, was sent to the New York Giants, who dealt journeyman veteran Norm Snead to the San Francisco 49ers, who then traded Joe Reed to the Detroit Lions.

Archie Manning, however, stayed with the New Orleans Saints, who apparently couldn't make the right deal for their quarterback by the 4 p.m., EDT, Tuesday trading deadline, even though he was benched last week. Manning had been on the trading block, reliable league sources reported.

In the day's other exchanges, defensive tackle Curley Culp and a 1975 No. 1 draft choice went from the Kansas City Chiefs to the Houston Oilers for defensive tackle John Matuszak and a No. 2 draft pick for 1976. Cornerback Jim Marsalis was dealt by the Chiefs to the Denver Broncos in exchange for tackle Tom Drougas and linebacker Tom Graham.

Buckeyes' Thompson shows brilliant play

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Call him Ken Thompson, as the Ohio State football press book does.

Call him Kenneth Edward Thompson Jr., as the university record does.

Call him Ed Thompson, as his coaches and teammates do.

But he's "Welcome" Thompson to George Hill, the defensive coordinator for the nation's top-ranked college team.

The 19-year-old sophomore from Waverly, Ohio, will make his second successive start Saturday at Nortnwestern, filling in for injured regular Ken Kuhn.

"He's playing great football," Hill said, "and you can underscore great.

"He's really come along and it couldn't have come at a better time," Hill added.

The 222-pound Thompson went in when Kuhn was hurt in the second quarter against Wisconsin two weeks ago. He was in on 17 tackles in that victory and followed with 11 participations last week against Indiana.

Thompson started his Ohio State career as a quarterback, but recalled, "I was pretty low." He was no better than fifth string when his chance came to join the defense.

Athletic recognition isn't new for the Buckeye sophomore.

A 14-time letter winner in high school, he captained his football, basketball and baseball teams. Most of his career was spent at New Boston Glenwood before he switched to Waverly after his senior football season.

"My parents moved," he explained. "My dad got a new job, superintendent of schools in Pike County so I played basketball at Waverly as a senior."

Quarterbacking and basketball, Hill believes, made Thompson a better linebacker. The Ohio State coach said it helps Thompson understand pass patterns better and has improved his reaction.

Toronto Toros gain WHA leadership

By The Associated Press

The Toronto Toros have staged a bullish charge into the World Hockey Association's East Division lead, winning their first four games by scoring 24 goals and giving up just eight.

And Coach Billy Harris, occupied the entire preseason with the Team Canada series against Russia, is impressed.

"There's nothing these guys can't do when they put their mind to it," Harris said Tuesday night after an 11-2 embarrassment of the Minnesota Fighting Saints.

Right wing Tom Simpson scored four times for Toronto, while Pat Hickey added three to the rout. In other WHA contests, the San Diego Mariners dumped the Cleveland Crusaders 5-2, and the Quebec Nordiques clubbed the Houston Aeros 7-2.

In the National Hockey League, the New York Islanders trimmed the Atlanta Flames 2-1; the Detroit Red Wings blanked the Washington Capitals 3-0; the Philadelphia Flyers dropped the Los Angeles Kings 4-2, and the Minnesota North Stars stopped the Vancouver Canucks 3-2.

Andre Lacroix scored twice and set up two other goals to help San Diego beat Cleveland, while Pierre Guite scored a pair to lead Quebec past Houston. The Aeros, last year's WHA champions, are off to a surprisingly weak start, having lost three of their first four games.

Rookie Bob Bourne scored a breakaway goal on Atlanta's Phil Myre with 43 seconds remaining to give the Islanders their triumph over the Flames. Gerry Hart gave New York the lead after just 1:12 of play, but Pat Quinn tied it for Atlanta early in the third period.

Andre Dupont's 35-foot slap shot at 5:08 of the final session helped the Flyers beat Los Angeles, which was undefeated in its first five games — all on the road — but 1-1 since arriving home.

Rookie Bill Lockhead scored his fourth and fifth goals of the young season and Jim Rutherford stopped 25 Washington shots as the Red Wings handed the expansion Capitals the third shutout of their seven-game NHL history.

Henry Boucha's two third-period goals combined with sharp goaltending by Cesare Maniago to carry the North Stars past the Canucks and end Vancouver's unbeaten streak at four games.

THIRD CONSECUTIVE LOSS — Washington's varsity and reserve volleyball teams were dealt their third consecutive losses by Clinton Massie, Tuesday evening. The varsity, now 5-4 for the year, lost the first game 16-14, won the second 16-14 and dropped the third 15-6. The reserves, falling to a 4-5 record, won the first match 15-4, lost the second 15-11 and faltered in the third 15-8.

Top scorer for the varsity was Cindy Vaughn with 13 points. Janet Davis had 21 set-ups and Betsy Krieger had 18.

Leading the reserves' scoring was Joyce Warner with 15 points. Rene Johns, Sharon Redden and Warner each had nine set-ups.

Thursday, the Lions hope to get back on the winning track when they visit Westfall, Thursday afternoon. (Larry Watts Photos)

Alston tabbed top manager

NEW YORK (AP) — Walter Alston, the Los Angeles Dodgers' unflappable general, was named The Associated Press' National League Manager of the Year today.

The stoic Alston, who guided the Dodgers to the National League pennant this season for the seventh time in his 21-year big league career, won in a rout.

Alston outscored Danny Murtaugh, manager of the National League East champion Pittsburgh Pirates, 290 votes to 87. Voting by the nation's sports writers and broadcasters took place prior to the league's playoffs.

Red Schoendienst, whose St. Louis Cardinals battled Pittsburgh down to the end for the East title, finished third in the balloting with 26 votes.

Finishing behind the top three were, Danny Ozark of the Philadelphia Phillies with six votes; Atlanta's Clyde King with three and Cincinnati's Sparky Anderson with two.

Alston took a relatively young team to the heights this year. It was his tender, loving care that made champions out of the Dodgers.

"I know that the players have enough to think about on the field, so I try not to give them too many problems in the clubhouse," says the easy-going Alston.

Known as a superb handler of men, Alston's tempered personality gave the Dodgers quiet confidence throughout the tough National League West battle with the Cincinnati Reds. In modern terminology, Alston kept the Dodger ship "rocking steady."

Once asked his philosophy, the dean of major league managers noted: "I pat most everybody on the back and kick the rare ones that need to be kicked."

Alston was born in Hamilton, Ohio, 62 years ago and once worked as a high school basketball coach and science teacher. He entered the Dodger organization with their Trenton, N.J., team and also managed at Montreal before being named the Dodger field boss for the 1954 season.

Alston signed a one-year contract that season, and uniquely has kept up the pattern throughout his glamorous career.

"One-year contracts are a matter of pride with me," Alston says. "I wouldn't want to work anywhere where I wasn't wanted."

Alston's accomplishments stamp him as one of the most successful managers of all time.

This older well maintained home will fill your needs as it offers: a large living room with an open fireplace, a formal dining room, a large kitchen with loads of wall cabinets and working space plus a pantry and storage room for your deep freeze, a nice size bedroom, a den or TV room or an additional bedroom and a full bath all downstairs.

Upstairs off the hallway are two nice size bedrooms with loads of closet space, and a full bath.

The basement affords 220 electric hookup for your washer and dryer, a new hot water heater, a gas hot air furnace, plus much additional work or storage space.

This all carpeted home with its larger rooms and decor will give you the restful feeling of living in a home not just a house.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Accidents and the Elderly

My father is heading for a broken hip. He is careless, he hurries and pays no attention to safety. He is 77 years old.

I recall a column you once wrote on this subject. Perhaps rereading it would impress him with the need for greater caution.

Mrs. G.B., Ind.

Dear Mrs. B.:

Dr. Carter Rowe, of the Harvard Medical School, wrote a pledge which, he insisted, should be signed by every elderly adult.

The pledge was based on the fact that fractured hips and fractured bones cause the elderly long and protracted months of pain and inactivity.

In most cases, carelessness is the basis for the injury. As one grows older, bones become more brittle and more fragile, and are more easily broken by simple accidents and falls.

The pledge: "I hereby promise my children and grandchildren to stop hurrying.

"I will not rush to the door or the telephone.

"I will pause a moment when I stand up.

"I will be sure of my footing.

"I will think before I act."

Add to this pledge the good sense of using a skidless cane, especially in bad weather.

Then attach this pledge to a mirror or a wall so that it can be read often.

Most fractures of the hip occur within the questionable safety of the home. You can help your father by being sure that there is excellent lighting in the home. A night light in the bathroom will avoid many fractured hips.

Scatter rugs are a source of potential danger unless they are anchored to the floor.

Highly waxed kitchen and bathroom floors are attractive but hazardous.

Stairwells are dangerous. An added rail along the wall is an excellent investment in safety.

The toys of grandchildren, haphazardly scattered about the room, are a threat to the safety of visiting grandparents.

Anticipation is the key to the prevention of accidents.
